EARLY SPRING SAMPLES

CHINESE PALACES ARE DOUBLY GUARDED

Day of Anxiety Passed in Pekin. Rumors of Quarrel in Palace.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PEKIN, Feb. 25.—The guards around the forbidden city have been doubled since yesterday afternoon, and all the palaces and residences of high officials are especially guarded. The police, who have hitherto carried batons, are now armed with rifles. All the officials accessible either refused any information or profess ignorance of the reasons for the precautions that have been taken. As a result many rumors are afloat.

The chief of police and other officials were telephoned yesterday to report to the palace and the display of force immediately followed their conference. Possibly the only cause is the alarm of the empress dowager over the prevalence of revolutionary rumors recently.

The Chinese minister at Tokyo a few days ago telegraphed the government, warning it against several revolutionary students who are departing from Japan to China.

Two packages of dynamite have been found in the street outside the gate leading to the palace. Apparently they were dropped by some one afraid to carry them.

Quarrel in Palace.

One report finding credence is that there is a quarrel afoot within the palace between the partisans of the empress dowager and the emperor over the selection of an heir to the throne, but it is not confirmed.

All information indicates that the military measures at the palace were only precautionary and were taken because of the widely circulated rumors that there would be trouble here Saturday.

The finding of the packages of dynamite outside the palace gates, which is somewhat mysterious, probably caused uneasiness, as the court has been nervous since the outrage in the Pekin railway station on September 24 when a missile was exploded inside a private car on the train carrying one of the four missions ordered abroad to study foreign political methods, killing four persons and wounding 20 others.

The reports of trouble within the palace cannot be corroborated, but they probably are founded on gossip, for which Pekin is always a hotbed, or are based on the strengthening of the palace guards.

City Remains Quiet.

The police tonight appeared without their rifles. The city was never quieter. There has not been the slightest sign of feeling shown against foreigners, nor have the foreigners here any apprehensions. Several parties from the foreign legations are taking advantage of the mild weather to make long excursions into the country.

The canard that Saturday had been designated the day for disturbances appears to have emenated in the United States. Telegrams describing the military preparations of the American government for trouble in China have been widely published in the Chinese newspapers and are considered as decidedly unfriendly.

RESCUES A MANIAC.

Fireman Struggles at Bottom of Well and Finally Reaches Ground With Insane Man.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Fighting a maniac at the bottom of a forty-foot well today, P. F. Farrington, a fireman, got a rope around the man, Louis Hellman, and kept his head above water until Policeman Horan and six citizens hauled both to the ground. Farrington clinging to the well bucket with one hand. Hellman will recover.

Mendenhall's Wound Is Fatal.

DAYTON, O., Feb. 25.—Roy Mendenhall, who three weeks ago tonight shot and killed Mrs. Eva Kenney because she refused to marry him, and then twice shot himself, died tonight in the hospital.

CASTRO BLOCKS OUT BUSY WAR PROGRAM

WILLEMSTAD, CURACAO, Feb. 25.—Advice from Venezuela are that President Castro says he will humble France, break up the Monroe doctrine, clear out the French from Venezuela, and then start on American, Englishmen and Germans, who, he declares, are worse than Chinese. He is reported as saying that he will clear the country of foreigners. He is very bitter against Americans, who, he says, are after his country. The populace is yearning for an American protectorate, and the better class of Venezuelans are reported as saying that the situation demands immediate intervention by the United States.

A CANDY PULLING TURNS INTO AN ASSASSIN HUNT

Two Men Shot to Death, but Who Killed Murderer Remains Mystery.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WOODBURY, TENN., Feb. 25.—The Johnson and Motley feud in Cannon county broke out afresh last night, and the following are fatally wounded:

SAM BLAIR, shot four times in stomach.
BOB MOTLEY, shot twice in groin.
RICHARD JOHNSON, throat cut.

The trouble between the two large families near the De Kalb county line originated 10 years ago over the operation of an illicit distillery, when blood was shed, and has broken out intermittently since.

Last night's renewal came at a young couples' candy pulling. Both Motley and Blair were shot by Johnson, but who cut the latter's throat is not clear.

RAID THE THEATERS.

Louisville Show Places Visited by Police to Compel Closing on Sundays.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Feb. 25.—Pursuant to a Sunday closing order the police today made wholesale arrests of managers and actors at three of Louisville's theaters. At Hopkins' vaudeville theater and at the Buckingham, a burlesque house, all the actors, managers, ticket sellers and doorkeepers were arrested, the actresses not being molested.

At the Avenue theater the scenery of the show failed to arrive, but an employe said the turn was put on to test the law. The performances were not interrupted, officers standing in the wings and quietly serving their warrants.

Saloons and shops were allowed to open as usual.

APPALLING TALE OF CRIME.

Governor Gooding of Idaho Says Orchard Confessed to 26 Murders, Implicating Miners.

BOISE, IDAHO, Feb. 25.—Gov. Gooding of Idaho tonight issued the following statement with respect to the assassination of former Gov. Frank Steuneberg:

"I want to state officially that Harry Orchard has made a full confession. The assassination was the third attempt that Orchard made. This confession was made to James McParland.

"In that confession Orchard implicated all those now under arrest, and others, including J. L. Simpkins. He told the story of 26 murders, the results of conspiracies in which all the accused parties were interested. When this story is given to the public, I believe it will be the greatest narrative of crime which the world knows."

Pittsburgher Victim of Thug.

YORK, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—George Torrence of Pittsburgh, an inspector of the Pressed Steel Car Company, was held up and robbed of a large amount of money last night. Torrence was walking along Philadelphia street when a footpad felled him with a blow on the head. While Torrence lay unconscious the highwayman rifled his pockets. The man's groans attracted help and he was soon revived.

GERMANS OBSERVE TWO BIG FETES THIS WEEK

Kaiser to Celebrate Silver Wedding and Marriage of Prince Eitel-Fritz.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria received deputations from the reichstag, the Prussian diet, the Prussian house of lords and other governmental bodies at the palace today, who tendered congratulations on the silver wedding anniversary of their majesties next Tuesday. Deputies from many German cities presented written addresses. The mayor of Berlin handed the emperor a document bearing the names of the emperor and empress, showing an expenditure of $125,000 for charitable institutions.

Their majesties, according to the resolutions announced months ago, will not receive presents from their subjects, except money for charitable uses which many municipalities and numerous mercantile companies and private individuals have voted or donated for new hospital extensions or for founding new institutions for the relief of suffering, estimated at $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Such an outpouring of donations is quite without precedent in Germany. About 100 annexes or new foundations will be dedicated in Prussia Tuesday, all receiving the names of the emperor or of the empress.

Present from America.

A brilliant display was made by the deputations of military officers from Great Britain, Russia, Austria and other powers as they drove down Unter den Linden to present their congratulations.

The emperor also received a deputation from the United German Veteran societies of North America, consisting of soldiers who fought in the wars with Denmark, Austria and France. The veterans were introduced by Vice Admiral Buechgel, chief of the admiralty, an honorary member.

This deputation presented the emperor and empress with a huge bowl resting on an onyx column, the whole about five feet high. Three buffalo heads, surmounted by bronze figures of Indians, are on the base of the cup, also decorated with bows and arrows. The bowl contains portraits of Emperor William and President Roosevelt and designs symbolical of German and American relations.

MINERS DECLARE SETTLEMENT; OPERATORS DENY IT

National Vice President Lewis Says Advance Is Gained.

F. L. ROBBINS SAYS NO

Declares Controversy Is Deadlocked and Contrary Reports Are False.

STATEMENTS ARE CONFLICTING

"F. L. Robbins of Pennsylvania and Mr. Taylor of Illinois, leaders of the operators, recognize their untenable position at Indianapolis and have gracefully submitted to the inevitable and will pay an advance to the miners."—Thomas L. Lewis, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"Such statement is prejudicial to all interests and is not alone a falsity, but an absurdity. No one is authorized to act or speak for the operators at this time, nor has anyone the right to prophesy. The matter is absolutely deadlocked."—Francis L. Robbins, leader of the bituminous coal operators.

Conflicting statements bearing on the report that the bituminous coal operators and miners had reached a basis of compromise in their difficulties, whereby the operators would agree to an advance, were made by the heads of the opposing forces last night. Thomas L. Lewis, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, issued a signed statement declaring that the possibility of a strike on April 1 had been averted, as the bituminous operators had receded from their position.

Francis L. Robbins, chairman of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and leader of the bituminous operators, emphatically denied the report, and maintained that the position is deadlocked, as neither side has the right or authority to offer or consider a compromise, and that the operators would not offer one if they could.

The statement issued by Mr. Lewis in Indianapolis, and sent broadcast throughout the country through the offices of the Associated Press, is as follows:

Says There Will Be No Strike.

You may accept one proposition as a fixed fact that there will be no general strike in the mining industry April 1. The operators will restore the reduction accepted by the miners two years ago, and perhaps more. Mr. F. L. Robbins of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Taylor of Illinois, leaders of the operators, recognize their untenable position at Indianapolis, and have gracefully submitted to the inevitable and will pay an advance to the miners. A general strike will be averted. Business will not be paralyzed by industrial strife. An era of peace will be established for another period of years, and the trade agreement method of settling labor disputes will win new friends to its standard.

The anthracite operators must now grant an advance in view of the action of the bituminous operators. The details will be worked out later, and probably through a special national convention of the mine workers.

For two years it has been my determined purpose to have all wage agreements of the miners terminate on the same date so that unity of action might be secured without violating existing agreements on April 1, 1906.

Can Compel Operators to Deal Justly.

The first move in this direction was made in Pittsburgh, Kansas, in the summer of 1904, when the expiration date of the contract was extended from the end of August to the end of March, this year. Practically all of our agreements expire March 31 next. By virtue of this arrangement the mine workers of the country are now in a position to compel the operators to deal with us justly.

At the recent joint convention in Indianapolis I advocated an advance for the miners because I believe they are entitled to it.

The iron and steel industry, and the railroads of the country—very large consumers of coal—were never more prosperous than now. From admissions made by those engaged in the production of coal and dependent largely upon the above named industries, it must have been apparent that a few cents per ton advance to the miners was not to stand in the way of the continued prosperous condition of the iron, steel and railroad interests. The operators, at the recent Indianapolis convention, showed the strongest evidence of the weak-

THOUSANDS DROWN BY TIDAL WAVE FOLLOWING EARTHQUAKE

Terrific Disturbance Throws Inhabitants of Colombia Into Panic and Spreads Destruction Along the South American Coast.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BUENA VENTURA, COLOMBIA, Feb. 25.—An earthquake occurred at 10:31 on the morning of February 21, lasting about seven minutes, the movement being from the north to the south.

The town was considerably shaken. The damage, however, was small, but the people were thrown into a panic, kneeling, weeping and praying in the streets. All the clocks in the town were stopped, while the cables were broken in many places.

Following the earthquake there was a tidal wave, which was of no consequence here, but the reports from the coast, including an area of 50 leagues to the south, state that 2,000 were killed by falling houses or drowned by the wave, whole families having been lost.

Sailing vessels report having encountered hundreds of corpses and quantities of dead fish, and many small settlements were completely swept away.

The damage by the earthquake and tidal wave at Tumaco was greater than here, and a few lives were lost. The shock was felt in the interior, and five people were killed at Tuquerresin.

At Popayan the people resorted to tents, and thanksgiving services were held on February 21 and 22. Twelve distinct shocks were felt, but it is believed that all danger is over now.

CUPID CAPTURES AGED LOVER FOR THE THIRD TIME

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MEADVILLE, PA., Feb. 25.—William Thomas, aged 76, and Miss Martha M. Cooper, aged 58, both of Meadville, stole a march on their friends and were married at noon Saturday in the parlors of the Hotel Manhattan, New York, by Dr. T. L. Flood of Meadville. He is a director in the First National bank and has a beautiful home to which to take his bride. This is his third marriage.

His bride has been a teacher in the Meadville schools nearly 30 years, principally in the high school, and in addition to being a woman of education and refinement, she is still known as one of the most beautiful women in Meadville.

GETS RECORD AND GIRL.

While Making Great Run Little "Joe" Kachline Wins Bride at the Race Track.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—The youth, "Joe" Kachline, who drove the Rambler car that made the 1,000-mile non-stop record last week during most of its long run, by so doing won the girl, Pearl Rankin, who watched him and cheered him on every trip he made.

"If you get the record you get me right away," said Miss Pearl, when Kachline started. And never was a motor car driven more carefully and cheerfully than that one. Manager Smith of the Rambler garage thought "Joe" was working so well for the $100 prize that had been offered each of the drivers, and so did his mates on the trip. But little "Joe" and the pretty, smiling maid in blue knew better.

Kachline borrowed a machine, closed it up tightly, and amid the cheers of a small group of admiring chauffeurs, honk-honked off to Chester with his bride-to-be at his side. They were married this afternoon.

NOT A STAGE HERO EITHER.

Battling Nelson Stops Runaway Horse and Rescues Woman and Two Children from Danger.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Battling Nelson, champion lightweight pugilist of the world, who is spending a few days in the mountains at Blue Sulphur, near here, prior to going into training at Philadelphia, saved the life of Mrs. Frank Howard and her two little children, who were driving at that resort today. The horse driven by Mrs. Howard became frightened and ran away.

Nelson saw the peril of the three and as the horse neared him he sprang at it, grasped it about the neck and succeeded in bringing it to a stop, after he had been dragged several yards. He received several painful bruises, but he made light of them when Mrs. Howard thanked him for his bravery.

BULLET STOPS TALK.

Fred Hunter Shoots His Wife in the Face and Then Kills Himself at Their Home.

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Feb. 25.—Fred Hunter, aged 23, an oil man of Manmington, tonight fired a bullet into his own brain after attempting to kill his wife, aged 20, by shooting her in the face with a 32-caliber revolver. Hunter died almost instantly. Mrs. Hunter will recover. The neighbors say Hunter objected to actions of his wife. The details of what happened before the shooting cannot be ascertained on account of Mrs. Hunter's wound. The bullet penetrated the intersections of the jaws, which prevents her from talking.

SOUTH SIDE MEN SAY THEY WILL FIGHT BIG CITY

John Bradley Attacks the Proposition on Political Grounds.

BIG FUSION CONTEST

Col. Guffey Will Try to Elect 10 Representatives and a Senator in Pittsburgh.

REPUBLICANS CAN BEAT HIM

Pittsburgh will not vote unanimously for the annexation of Allegheny. As conditions now stand, much work will have to be done in this city. Some strong Republicans and Democrats are openly announcing they will not vote for a greater town.

John Bradley and David J. McGarey, two of the strongest individual Republicans on the South Side, say they will fight Greater Pittsburgh. They claim a majority of the voters in that part of the city are opposed to consolidation. Mr. Bradley announces he is open to conviction. "If good reasons can be adduced for the merging of the two cities," said Mr. Bradley, "I am willing to assist in securing it. So far there has been no argument which appeals to the people of the South Side. Until shown consolidation would bring benefits I will oppose the proposition on political grounds. I am a Republican and can see no good reason for erecting one of the greatest cities in the Union and turning it over to the Democrats."

See Things Differently Now.

The statement credited to Mayor-elect Guthrie in an interview sent out from Atlantic City Saturday indicates that the salt breezes or something has made him change his mind about the victory of Tuesday being a "non-partisan" one. While discussing the reorganization of the Republican party in Pittsburgh, he is quoted as saying:

"However, the lines of Democracy have been established in Allegheny county, and all the deals they are able to make will not interfere with the progress of the party."

Quite a number of Republicans in Pittsburgh are saying in private conversation just what Mr. Bradley has said for publication. M. G. Leslie, chairman of the Republican city committee, is out of town, and there has been no expression from him on the subject of consolidation. He is expected home today. Previous to the mayoralty election he was quoted as strongly favoring a Greater Pittsburgh.

Controller Larkin is one Democrat who does not want a greater city. He will be found trying to lead the Democrats in opposition to the project. With the admission of the big Republican majority in Allegheny into Pittsburgh the controller would find a certain barrier to his re-election two years hence.

Guffey Planning Fusion.

Col. J. M. Guffey is planning for a fusion fight in the county this fall. He wants to unite the Democratic, Citizens, Civic and Good Government parties for his candidate for governor and for a legislative ticket to his liking. Pittsburgh is to be made the battle ground.

The fusionists will make a special effort to capture the members of the legislature. Under the new apportionment there are seven representative districts in Pittsburgh electing 10 members. In the mayoralty election the unofficial returns show that Guthrie carried five of these districts. There are also two senatorial districts entirely within the limits of Pittsburgh. In one there will be no election this fall, as the senator representing it is a holdover. The wards comprising the other district gave Guthrie a majority.

The Third district consists of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth and Fifteenth wards. It elects one member and is naturally Democratic. Guthrie had a majority of 779.

The Battle Ground.

The Fourth district elects two members and consists of the Second, Third, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Eleventh and Thirteenth wards. It gave Jenkinson a majority of 1,770.

The Fourteenth and Thirty-third wards comprise the Fifth district and elect one member. Guthrie had a majority of 925 in this district.

The Sixth district is made up of the Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth wards and elects one member. It gave Jenkinson a majority of 230.

One member is elected in the Seventh district, consisting of the Nineteenth and Twentieth wards. The Guthrie majority was 945.

The Eighth elects one member and consists of the Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Thirty-seventh wards. It gave Guthrie a majority of 422.

All of the South Side wards constitute the Ninth district and elect three members. The district gave Guthrie a majority of 1,367.

The voters of the Thirty-eighth senatorial district must elect a senator this fall. It is made up of these wards: First, Second, Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, Thirty-third, Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth wards. These wards gave Guthrie a majority of 891.

Must Nominate Good Men.

While Col. Guffey will endeavor to hold this same vote for a fusion legislative ticket, the Republicans are not scared. They realize that it will be necessary to put good men in the field for these 10 seats in the lower house and for the one seat in the senate.

It will be noted that all of these districts with the exception of the one on the South Side, are small, and the candidate can meet his constituents. The Republican primaries will not be held until late in September. The nominations will be made by the popular vote and the electors will have every opportunity to have a voice in the selection of the nominees. The next legislature will deal with some big problems and there will be more big men in it than have been there for some time. Allegheny county will have 24 members of the lower house, and with the right kind of candidates at least 23 members of the delegation can be Republicans.

The Thirty-eighth senatorial district can elect a Republican senator despite the fusion movement, if the right kind of a candidate is put in the field. The county will have four senators out of a total of six to elect this fall, but in the other three districts there is no chance for an argument at this time.

Director Clark of the department of charities is said to have gone to Atlantic City to confer with Mayor-elect Guthrie. It is generally conceded Clark will have a place in the new cabinet. His friends are trying to have him appointed head of the public safety department.

OBSERVE TWO BIG FETES

on Tuesday will almost be a replica of that of the crown prince and crown princess last June.

The Duchess Sophie, as part of the pageant, will enter Berlin tomorrow evening, proceeding through a flower and banner bedecked way to the castle, where the emperor, surrounded by his family and numerous German princes, will welcome her.

The grandmother of the duchess, Princess Frederich Karl of Prussia, will drive with her in the entry into Berlin instead of the empress, who is indisposed.

The hotels are already filled with members of the minor German royal families, of whom on these occasions the capital usually sees from 50 to 100. They and their gorgeous suites filled up the boxes at the gala opera performance on Saturday night, occupied the principal places at the banquet in the great white hall of the castle this evening, and will form a rich setting of costumes and uniforms for the wedding ceremonies, of which there will be three, the signing of the marriage contract under the statutes of the house of Hohenzollern tomorrow, the administering of the civil law oaths on Tuesday, and, an hour later, the religious rites in the chapel of the castle by Dr. Dryander, the court chaplain.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND ANNIVERSARY MEETING

St. Mary Magdalen Roman Catholic church of Homestead was not large enough to accommodate all who yesterday wanted to attend the special services in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the congregation. At 10:30 o'clock solemn high mass was celebrated by the rector, the Rev. J. J. Bullion, assisted by the Rev. J. F. Doyle of St. Kiernan's church, Pittsburgh, deacon; the Rev. John Padden of the cathedral, subdeacon, and the Rev. A. H. Mayer of St. Wendelin's church, Carrick, master of ceremonies. Following the mass Bishop Canevin preached a special anniversary sermon.

Last evening at 7:30 o'clock solemn vespers were sung, following which a sermon was preached by the Rev. John C. Price of St. James' church, West End. Tonight a euchre and dance will be given in Stevenson's hall by the women of the congregation. On February 28, 1881, the Rev. Father Bullion, who was then attached to the cathedral in this city, was sent by Bishop John Tuigg to take charge of the Homestead parish, which then comprised about 50 families. Since then the congregation has acquired property the estimated value of which is $300,000, including a $125,000 church, a school house, convent and parish house, besides valuable real estate outside of the borough. The present church, which is a handsome gothic structure, was dedicated in 1896. The building which it replaced was burned.

SWINDLE CLEARED UP.

Norfolk & Western Forgery Case Exploded—Police Threw Mystery About the Affair.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—With the rearrest of Samuel J. Humphreys and the arrest of Douglas E. Smith tonight, on the eve of the day when Charles A. Seton is to be sentenced for swindling a Texas railway, the notorious Norfolk & Western railway forgeries are believed to have been cleared up. Mystery was thrown around the case by the detectives. Smith has not appeared before, but there was a mysterious "E. L. Green," for whom the police have been searching.

Only the sharp eye of a clerk of a trust company prevented perhaps the largest swindling forgery ever attempted. The swindlers obtained from a reputable engraving company a fac-simile of the Norfolk & Western certificates, except that they used "railroad" for "railway." They would have netted nearly $5,000,000 if successful, but only realized $8,000.

Charge Men With Gambling.

The Wilkinsburg police raided the home of Louis Elliott, a negro, in Glen street, yesterday morning, and three men were arrested. They were charged with gambling. The particular offense in this case was shooting craps. The prisoners were negroes and were arrested because the neighbors complained they made too much noise when they "coaxed" the "bones" to stand up for them and get "baby a new pair of shoes."

REFUSES TO TALK ON THE OPINION

WILL INFORM PUBLIC LATER

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.

Whatever course of procedure it may be the purpose of Attorney General Carson and of the governor to adopt on carrying out the recommendation contained in the former's opinion on the insurance investigation, filed yesterday, remains a secret. Gov. Pennypacker was seen by your correspondent tonight and flatly declined to indicate the next step to be taken in putting into effect the suggestion of his law officer that suits in equity be begun against former Insurance Commissioners Luper, Lambert and Durham and J. Clayton Erb for the recovery of the actuarial fees alleged to have been diverted from the state treasury.

"I would rather not say anything about it," was the governor's answer to a query as to what he thought of his attorney general's opinion that these fees belonged to the state and that money was improperly paid by Durham to several individuals who did not earn it in the service of the state.

"The attorney general," he continued, after a pause, "has given the subject careful study, and when future action shall be decided on the information will be given out, and not before."

"Will you say whether, if the bills in equity shall be filed, as suggested by the attorney general, they will be filed by that officer or by a private citizen deputized by him?"

"I do not know," answered the governor.

"Will the action be begun in the Dauphin county court or elsewhere?"

"I do not care to discuss the subject," said the governor, pleasantly but firmly.

"The procedure that may be taken is a matter that probably will be determined by the attorney general, and when it is decided upon the public will be informed."

Neither Attorney General Carson nor his deputy, Fred W. Fleitz, was in Harrisburg yesterday or today, and it was impossible to glean any information on the subject from any other official of the state law department.

Senator John E. Fox, who was chairman of the insurance investigation committee, likewise declined to discuss the attorney general's opinion, or to express himself on that document. Neither would he say anything as to the probable course of procedure in the suggested litigation.

Incidentally Gov. Pennypacker said tonight that he did not know when he would call a special election in the Third congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by Representative George A. Castor's death.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Francis Shunk Brown, attorney for former Commissioner Durham, gave the following interview in relation to the report of Attorney General Carson:

You can rest assured, and you may say for Mr. Durham, that if it is proved a single penny from the insurance department reached Mr. Durham irregularly it will be returned to the state, and it will be done as soon as that fact is determined.

Since I have not read the report and am not fully acquainted with it, I would not care to venture an opinion as to the interpretation Mr. Carson puts on the laws governing the collection and retention of fees. But remember, there are two sides to every case.

In reference to the padded payrolls, he said:

All the facts should have come out regarding that. How was Mr. Durham to know what work these men did? He simply signed the checks as any other person would do, and took his subordinate's word for it that the men were working. Many a man signs checks, without knowing what they are for, when they are placed before him by a responsible person.

Col. Lambert, under whose administration as insurance commissioner more than $28,000 actuarial fees were paid, said:

I am surprised to know that after the newspapers have tried this case and all but put some of us in prison, Mr. Carson should suggest trying it in court, the very place it ought to be heard. It is awful this way we have been misrepresented and disgraced in the newspapers.

We did nothing wrong—simply followed in the footsteps of those who went before us. J. Montgomery Forster drew the bill and lived under it for 18 years and we simply did as he did.

FATAL RIOT IN CUBA.

Disturbers Attack Rural Guards, Killing Two and Wounding Four—Strikers on Rampage.

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—Guanabacoa, occupied by 25 rural guards, was attacked early this morning by 30 rioters, armed with rifles and revolvers, who suddenly entered from the rear and began shooting into the dormitories of the sleeping soldiers, shouting, "long live the constitution," "long live the Liberal party," and "down with the rural guards."

The soldiers seized their arms and returned the fire, whereupon the rioters fled. A sergeant in his bed and a corporal on guard were killed, while four rural guards were wounded.

CAR HITS TRUCK; FIREMEN HURT

Fire in Broom Factory in Allegheny Indirect Cause of Injury to Three Men.

ONE GOES TO HOSPITAL

While getting ready to leave a fire at the Lang Union Broom Company's factory, 423 Preble avenue, Allegheny, last night, hook and ladder truck No. 7, Eureka engine company, was struck by car No. 199 of the Union line. Three men were injured and the truck and car badly damaged. The injured are:

JOHN GOLDEN, aged 27, motorman, of Chartiers street, Allegheny; head badly cut and chest squeezed; taken from the wreck unconscious and removed to St. John's General hospital in a patrol wagon, condition serious.

GEORGE BROWN, aged 33, and married, driver of the hook and ladder truck; head cut and back sprained; taken to his home in Manhattan street.

MICHAEL SHANNON, aged 45, and married, captain of No. 7 engine company; left ankle sprained by jumping from the truck just before the collision occurred; condition not serious.

The stock house of the broom factory is where the fire occurred. There were stored in the building, a one-story iron-clad structure, located in the rear of the main factory, nearly 100,000 broom handles and several tons of broom corn.

At 6:15 p. m. fire was discovered among the broom corn and an alarm was turned in from box 12. When the engines arrived the stock house was a mass of flames, and fearing the fire would spread to adjoining buildings a second alarm was sent in at 6:39 from the same box. The flames were confined to the stock-room. The loss is from $7,000 to $8,000, fully covered by insurance.

It was 10 o'clock before the engine companies all left, and as hook and ladder truck No. 7 was leaving the car came up Preble avenue and ran into it.

The front cab of the car was completely wrecked, and Golden, the motorman, was wedged in so that a part of the cab had to be torn away to get him out. Capt. Shannon was running the tiller of the truck. He jumped to the street, a distance of 10 feet, and escaped injury, except a slight sprain of the ankle. The damage to the truck was a broken wheel and axle, and the breaking of some parts of the tiller machinery.

TILLMAN READY WITH PROGRAM

He Favors Amendment to Rate Bill—Knox and President Still Friends.

NOT AFFECTED BY STRUGGLE

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Senator Tillman, who has been instructed by the committee on interstate commerce to report the Hepburn railroad rate bill favorably to the senate, has decided upon a program. He will tomorrow make a verbal report of the action of the committee, presenting the resolution offered by Mr. Dolliver, with Mr. Aldrich's amendment which leaves all members of the committee free to vote as they please and to offer amendments in the senate.

In making his report Mr. Tillman will not make a speech, but will present his views later. He will ask that the bill be not taken up for a few days and in the meantime, if this suggestion is followed, the statehood bill will have the right of way. Unless there is a disposition to defeat the statehood bill or delay its passage a vote on that measure will have been reached before the senate discusses the rate bill.

When Senator Tillman makes his report he will present the testimony taken by the committee during its hearing of last summer, with the briefs prepared by the experts, Newcomb and Adams, so far as they are ready.

Obstruction Looked For.

It is possible that the Republicans will insist upon going ahead with the discussion and in that event a complication will be caused by an attempt to sidetrack the statehood bill, now the regular order of the senate every day at 2 o'clock.

It is probable that a caucus of Democratic senators will be held soon to decide upon a course with respect to the amendments. Senator Tillman favors a caucus and it is quite likely that one will be called. It is also very probable that the Hepburn bill will be amended in the senate.

"There are a number of amendments that should be made to the bill," said Mr. Tillman today. "One of them is a provision to prohibit railroads from owning coal mines. Another compels them to make connections with private sidings without discrimination. The President will not recognize the bill when we are through perfecting it."

When Tillman was governor of South Carolina he found that a number of the roads in that state were delinquent in their taxes. He ordered the property to be levied on. In a number of counties the sheriffs seized locomotives and chained the driving wheels to the tracks with huge log chains.

Roads Paid Up.

Some of the roads were in the hands of receivers. They went into the courts and asked for the arrest of the sheriffs on the ground that they were guilty of contempt. Five sheriffs were put in jail, but the roads not in receivers' hands paid their taxes. The result was that a law was passed making state taxes a first lien on railroad property.

The action of the senate committee on interstate commerce Friday cannot be construed as a repudiation of the court review amendment. It is known that some of the Democratic members are favorable to this amendment and will vote for it unless restrained by the Democratic caucus.

Mr. Knox's court review provision was brought forward at the request of a number of his colleagues. Because it was discarded does not change the views of Senator Knox and those whose opinions are the same.

It is significant in opposing a court review amendment, President Roosevelt disregarded the advice of a great many of his closest friends. Secretaries Root and Taft, Senators Spooner and Knox, acknowledged to be at the top of the legal profession, have pointed out to him imperfections in the Hepburn bill.

The report that President Roosevelt and Senator Knox have had a falling out over the rate legislation is wholly without foundation.

Matthews Is Assaulted Again.

WASHINGTON, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—When William Matthews entered his yard in Wellsburg, W. Va., last midnight two men attacked him with beer bottles. After being struck once Matthews shot three times at the men and they fled. Matthews was assaulted last summer at Wellsburg. Last week one of the men who participated in the assault was sent to the penitentiary, and it is believed last night's attack was in retaliation for this.

Denies King Edward Is Ill.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—With reference to the report that King Edward is in a serious condition of health, published in a sensational paper today, it can be said that his majesty is fulfilling all his public functions and that he gave several audiences on Saturday, followed by a dinner in the evening to the members of the new government.

DAVID B. HENDERSON DIES AFTER PROMINENT CAREER

Former Speaker of National House of Representatives Succumbs to Long Attack of Paresis. In Congress for Twenty Years.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

DUBUQUE, IA., Feb. 25.—David B. Henderson, formerly speaker of the national house of representatives, died this afternoon at Mercy hospital of paresis. Col. Henderson began to sink Friday afternoon, rallied Saturday morning, but in the afternoon lapsed into unconsciousness and failed rapidly. All of his family except a son in California were at the bedside, but Col. Henderson was unable to recognize any one but his wife since a week ago, except on Friday.

Col. Henderson was stricken with paresis last May, and his condition grew so grave that he was removed to a hospital in September. His condition remained unchanged except for the usual progress of such a disease till a week ago last Friday, when he suffered another stroke, which resulted in total blindness.

The former speaker failed rapidly physically and mentally until Friday, when his mental powers returned for a few hours, followed by a relapse which ended in death.

The funeral will be held Thursday, with services in the Episcopal church under the auspices of the Grand Army. Former Congressman George D. Perkins of Sioux City will deliver an eulogy. The body is to lie in state Thursday at the church.

Raised on Farm.

David Brefiner Henderson was born at Old Deer, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, March 14, 1840. When he was six years old he was brought to America, his father first taking up a farm in Illinois, and later, in 1849, settling in Fayette county, Ia., where a large tract of land then acquired is today still known as Henderson's prairie. The boy followed the plow, went to the district school in winter, and won some local fame as an athlete at the expense of a broken arm.

He was sent to Rockford, Ill., for surgical treatment, and in his convalescence he studied, taught school, and saved enough money to enter Upper Iowa university. He was at the university when Fort Sumter was fired on. He made a fiery address to the students, and thereupon organized a company for service, accepting the position of first lieutenant. At Fort Donelson Lieut. Henderson suffered a gunshot wound in his face.

Then came a piece of shell at Corinth, and he was carried off the field to have one of his legs amputated. On account of that injury he was discharged February 26, 1863. After a year he went back to the war on a wooden leg and was colonel of the Forty-sixth Iowa infantry.

Walked on Crutches.

His father sent him to Dubuque to study law in the office of William B. Allison, senator from Iowa. In 1869, he was appointed assistant United States district attorney, holding that two years. In 1882 he was elected to congress from the Third Iowa district. That was the beginning of 20 years of continuous service.

He walked on crutches, and in debate it was his habit to rest the stump of his severed leg on the desk in front of him. Swaying backward and forward, thus supported, and shaking his thick mane of white hair, he was one of the most striking figures in the house. When his name was mentioned for the speakership, to succeed Thomas B. Reed, in 1899, his campaign was already made and he was easily successful.

The nomination from his Iowa district was proffered to him as usual in 1902, but he astonished the country by declining it. His farewell to his associates has been described as one of the most affecting scenes ever witnessed.

Col. Henderson formed an advantageous law partnership in New York soon after his retirement, but did not succeed. He went to Dubuque in May, 1905, as a broken and enfeebled man, hardly recognizable as the hardy fighter his constituents had known for more than 40 years. He suffered a slight attack of paralysis in June, 1905.

NATURE BLAMED FOR CAR WRECKS

Escaping Frost Rather Than Negligence Is Held Responsible for Millvale Disasters.

THE INJURED ARE RECOVERING

No official inquiry has been made into the causes responsible for the two disastrous wrecks on the Millvale and Etna branch of the Pittsburgh Railways lines on Saturday evening, when more than 60 passengers were more or less injured. If any investigation is to be made, nothing has been said of it publicly.

One of the company officers said last night that it was not unlikely some of the inspectors would go over the route today and scrutinize the roadbed between Willow Grove and the western boundary of Etna. Such a looking-over would have to be followed promptly by the construction of a retaining wall, or adequate guard rails, if it were to produce any permanent good so far as the public is concerned.

The old Butler plank road on which the Millvale and Etna lines are laid is merely filled-in ground. It lies along the base of the big hills flanking the northern side of the Allegheny river. Below the road are the Pittsburgh & Western railroad tracks. The traction road is not supported even by piles, and portions of it are slowly slipping away toward the railroad. It will not be otherwise until some means are employed to retain it in its present location.

Nature Blamed for It All.

According to the company officials, no corporation negligence can be charged as being in any manner responsible for the two wrecks. It was either carelessness or oversight upon the part of nature. This ancient dame, making no allowances for the virtue of franchises and traction properties, in a moment of abstraction permitted the frost to escape from the geological strata in the vicinity of Willow Grove and Belvidere. The gently swelling earth brought on rail-expansion, a species of traction line dissolution, and, of course, the wrecks naturally followed. In the logic of traction officials, expansion of this kind has its natural sequence—a wreck.

Conversation with residents in the districts that feed this stem of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will enlighten the ignorant or sceptical upon the question of just how much the public will stand for in the matter of public conveyances. If the people in Millvale and Etna are to be believed, it is no unusual thing for 75 or 80 persons to be packed into one small car with a seating capacity of 22. Anyone unable to figure this out can apply to those living on this line for information. More than this, the type of cars in which this system of packing is practiced is of a kind that would cause a stranger to hesitate about entering them.

Make Poor Sleeping Cars.

The nicest thing the Millvale people say of them is that these cars have rectangular wheels. Almost any one can get used to them if training is continued long enough. The Millvale and Etna people have been trying out the system for years and advocate it for those prone to sleeping in street cars. It is a guaranteed cure for such as are so affected.

It is scarcely likely another wreck similar to those of Saturday night could happen again without numbering among its victims several dead. Fortunately, both accidents hapened at points where the street car tracks are at no great height above the railroad tracks, and in both accidents happened at points where was down a gradual slope, rather than over a sheer precipice. At many places along the line the tracks are 20 feet above the railroad right-of-way. There is but one or two feet between the outside track and the edge, and a drop off these places would be straight down, rather than on a gentle gradient. For a car to plunge off such a point would certainly mean death for those in the car.

To observe the passengers on the cars running from Allegheny out to Millvale and Etna last night was to have timidity demonstrated in varying degrees of intensity. One fact worthy of note was that many women refused to sit on the side of the cars nearest the river, and almost everyone showed symptoms of apprehension if the car appeared to be picking up speed. Expressions of relief were heard from passengers alighting near their homes after a ride over the line. All seemed glad that the ride was over and that no mishap had occurred.

Many Bruised and Cut.

The boroughs of Millvale and Etna seemed to be harboring a lot of football players last night, judging from the gait of many seen on the streets. Many who were in the street cars that wandered from their own right-of-way did not realize until they left their beds yesterday that the tumble had affected them. Then innumerable small bruises, sprains and abrasions made themselves felt. Drug stores sold large quantities of arnica, horse liniment and other ointments prescribed for ills of the flesh.

During the night the traction company removed all evidences of the wrecks. The demolished cars were loaded on flat cars on the railroad and hauled away. Scores of people visited the scenes of the accidents, but were disappointed. It is a canon of all railroad companies that wrecks must not be allowed to remain in sight during the hours of daylight, for such things plant fear in the hearts of the people.

The physicians in the two boroughs who attended the injured on Saturday night reported yesterday that most of their patients were recovering as well as could be expected. The injuries of some are of such nature that at present it is impossible to define their status of seriousness.

Just a Chance for Recovery.

Miss Retta Cupps, of 24 Kittanning street, is in a critical condition at the Allegheny General hospital. It was reported in Etna last night that she was dying, but this was denied by the hospital physicians. They say Miss Cupps has a chance for recovery.

The condition of George Klingensmith of Walnut street, Etna, is undetermined. His spine is terribly injured and three ribs are broken. The attending physicians say that because of his intense suffering it is impossible for the present to make a minute examination. It is feared total paralysis or death will be his fate.

Mrs. S. C. Wagner, wife of the Lutheran minister at Etna, is worse hurt than first reported. Her physician yesterday removed large pieces of glass from her face, neck and arms. Five stitches were required to close the wound in her scalp, and she suffers intensely from injuries to her back and hips. Since the time of the wreck Mrs. Wagner has not been able to sleep. Opiates were administered yesterday to relieve the pain and induce sleep, but these were unavailing. Freda, the 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Wagner, is badly hurt about the back and limbs and is a victim of complete nervous prostration. These are the most seriously wounded among all who were carried over the embankment by the cars.

Attempt to Wreck Train Fails.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Feb. 25.—An attempt was made to wreck a West Shore train known as the Chicago limited express, west bound, about two miles east early this morning. Engineer John Scanlon noticed a burning odor and brought his train to a stop. He found wedged beneath the pony trucks a piece of wood, hewn from a tie. It pushed along ahead of the pilot and pony trucks until it was smoking. This train hauls a number of express cars, and it is believed that the persons were working to rob the train.

PESSIMISTIC VIEW AT THE CONFERENCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

ALGECIRAS, Feb. 25.—The bank project which the Moorish delegation put forward at the session of the Moroccan conference Saturday is, according to the French and British delegates, a loosely drafted mixture of the German and French proposals, following chiefly the German lines. The British and French delegates hint that the project is of German inspiration and that its object is to indicate the concessions Germany is prepared to make.

The committee on revision has instructions to endeavor to agree on a definite draft of the proposals and to submit it to the full conference at the earliest day possible.

A pessimistic view obtains among the French and British delegations concerning the likelihood of an agreement. They foresee the probability of the conference leaving the bank question unsettled and proceeding to the discussion of the police problem, which they also believe cannot be solved unless the neutral powers make efforts at Berlin and Paris.

They predict that the conference will last another fortnight, and that the delegates will separate after having embodied in a protocol the reforms already adopted.

MINERS SAY SETTLEMENT

ness of their position when they ignored our arguments that they could pay an advance to the mine workers at the present selling price of coal and still make a large profit. Developments will prove additional facts, namely:

First—That some of the large corporations represented at the recent Indianapolis joint convention were not in a position to make a successful resistance of the miners' demands.

Second—That the great coal consuming public will not materially suffer by reason of the advance which will be granted to the miners.

T. L. LEWIS, Vice President,
United Mine Workers of America.

Mr. Robbins, when asked regarding the report last night, previous to his departure for New York, said:

"There is not the slightest basis of truth in the report that the bituminous coal operators have agreed to give the miners an increase over the present scale with a view of compromising the present controversy. Such statement is prejudicial to all interest and is not alone a falsity, but an absurdity. No one is authorized to act or speak for the operators at this time, nor has any one the right to prophesy. No agreement could be made or considered until the operators of the four states were again called together. The miners are in the same position. They can neither accept, reject, nor offer propositions until they have first reconvened. The whole matter is deadlocked at this time.

"Of course, Mr. Mitchell and I have held several conferences, but they were nothing but conferences. Neither had the right, authority nor inclination to make or reject propositions, nor did we. The position of the operators today is the same as it was in Indianapolis—a renewal of the present scale. We have not receded from our position in the matter and any report or rumor to the contrary is pure fancy and imagination."

JOHN J. GREGG DEAD.

Well-Known Local Newspaper Man Passes Away Suddenly—Death Due to Heart Failure.

After an illness of only three days, John J. Gregg, city editor of the Dispatch, died suddenly of heart failure at 12:20 o'clock this morning at his home in Wilkinsburg. Mr. Gregg's illness developed on Thursday, but not until yesterday did it give rise to any cause for alarm. Even then the serious nature of his condition was known only to his immediate family. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Gregg's condition became more serious and relatives were summoned to the home. He was conscious of his condition for some hours before the end came.

Mr. Gregg was a most alert and capable news writer and handler of news. His ability attracted the highest regard of his employers. He had been connected with the Dispatch as city editor since last August. He was engaged as a working newspaper man in Pittsburgh for the last 14 years. He came to Pittsburgh from Connellsville, where he formerly worked on the Connellsville Courier. One of the first papers he was connected with in Pittsburgh was the Times, of which he was at one time city editor. For eight years he occupied responsible positions on the Post, much of that period as night editor. Leaving the Post, he came to the Dispatch, soon taking the city editor's desk. He also worked on the Leader.

Mr. Gregg was born in West Elizabeth, Pa., and was about 38 years old. Surviving him are a widow and three small children—John Gregg, Jr., and Mary and Jane Gregg. Other relatives surviving are his mother, Mrs. Isabella Gregg of this city, a brother, William Gregg of McKeesport, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Lafferty of Hazelwood. Deceased was a member of Dallas lodge No. 525, F. and A. M., and Zerubbabel chapter, R. A. M., No. 162. He also belonged to the Heptasophs.

H. C. Kelley Is Killed by Car.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25.—Henry C. Kelley, aged 48, a prominent citizen of Kelleys Island, O., and assistant general manager of the Kelleys Island Lime and Transportation Company, was killed here this afternoon by a street car. He was returning from church to his brother's home, where he was visiting. His head was crushed.

MOTHER CHURCH AFTER MISSIONS

Hungary Makes Strenuous Effort to Preserve the Unity of Her Religion.

STIRRING DEBATE LAUNCHED

A debate was started yesterday in the Braddock Hungarian church, a part of the Reformed church of America, that will be carried through Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, until the question has been presented to the 31 congregations of Magyars. The question is whether the Hungarian members shall again affiliate with the national church of their native land or remain in the Reformed church of America. On one side, representing the latter, is the Rev. David A. Sonders of Irwin, superintendent of missions in the states named, while the Hungarian government is represented by its special represeniative, Dr. Antol-Geza, professor in the University of Bapa, Hungary, who arrived in this country a short time ago.

The Hungarian government has for several years been trying to get its people in this country to remain faithful to its church by renouncing their allegiance to the American church. Much time and money have been spent in this direction. Two years ago Count Dagenfel was sent to America to do this work. He made appeals to members, to the pastors in charge of the congregations, to the mission board and to the synods. He met with little success and returned home in a huff. The pastors, many of whom have been brought from Hungary and trained for the special work, remained true to their mission boards, with but one exception, and that was at Johnstown. Here the pastor was found secretly at work with Count Dagenfel, and the pastor was deposed.

Will Fight the National Church.

The Hungarian mission boards have spent thousands of dollars in establishing these missions, and it is said no effort will be spared to fight the national church of Hungary in this movement. It is asserted that the Hungarian government is leaving nothing undone to keep its people coming to America from breaking away from the national Protestant church and its influence. It became alarmed over the big tide of immigration, but was unable to stop it. Then, it is said, it consented to take $3 a head from the steamship companies for every Magyar carried to America to make this his home.

Last year 15,000 Hungarians came to these shores. These were lost to the church, the government there believes.

The Reformed church of America has a large membership in Western Pennsylvania, growing missions have been established in Pittsburgh, Allegheny, Braddock and several other towns in this classis. There are also many congregations in Ohio and Indiana. In the Braddock mission yesterday afternoon almost every member was present. The Rev. Mr. Sonders made his appeal in English, and it was interpreted by an English-speaking member. The Rev. Mr. Sonders outlined what the Reformed church had done for the Hungarian, alone in a strange land, but one, however, where every man had the right to worship according to his wishes. He gave facts and figures about the growth of the Hungarian missions and the benefits to be derived. He asked the members to be true to the church of their adoption.

Makes Appeal With Native Tongue.

Dr. Antol-Geza spoke in his native tongue. He made an impassioned appeal in behalf of the national church of Hungary. He argued that the members here are still subjects of the land of their birth and under its protection. He spoke of the church as a part of the government that should not be allowed to become weakened and lose its strength through the people who have left the old country.

The result of the appeals will not be known for a week. It has been arranged that the congregations will have a week to consider the question and then a vote will be taken. From Braddock the debate will be carried to the other churches in the four states by the Rev. Mr. Sonders and Prof. Antol-Geza.

ORGANIZE TWO SOCIETIES.

Catholic Men and Women of Millvale Will Work to Further the Cause of Temperance.

Two temperance societies were organized yesterday evening at a temperance rally in the Millvale opera house, under the auspices of St. Ann's Roman Catholic congregation. The women's society will be known as the League of Our Mother of Sorrow, and the men's society is called St. Ann's Total Abstinence society. Both will be affiliated with the Catholic Total Abstinence union of the Pittsburgh diocese.

At the meeting, which was presided over by the Rev. Father M. M. Ward, C. S. Sp., pastor of St. Ann's church, addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. Ward, the Rev. Thomas Giblin, C. S. Sp., of Holy Ghost college; the Rev. Father John Kuback of St. Veronica Roman Catholic church, Ambridge; the Rev. John Beane of Corpus Christi church, Pittsburgh, and Stephen Madden and Charles D. McShane of Pittsburgh.

ETNA IS CHAGRINED.

No Flag Flies on School House in Commemoration of George Washington's Birthday.

Etna has not yet recovered from the chagrin and shame of February 22. The small children of the borough prepared to do "stunts" in the school and refreshed their memories with tales of cherry trees, Valley Forge and Washington's bath in the Ohio river. A few citizens of the borough floated small flags. One American citizen walked up to the school at Walnut and Locust street. No American flag was flaunting from the tall staff. Two members of the flag committee walked down street.

"Where's the flag?" asked the observant citizen.

The flag committee looked at him in surprise, and then one replied:

"Why, I forgot it was Washington's birthday."

The flag did not fly during the day.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE UNION HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The diocesan monthly meeting of the Total Abstinence union was held yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas hall, Braddock. There were 125 delegates present, besides 200 visitors. Stephen Madden presided. The principal speakers were the Rev. M. M. Ward, the Rev. Thomas Giblin and Charles McShane, all of Pittsburgh. At the close of the meeting the total abstinence pledge was signed by many.

Man With Awful Name Is Fined.

William Medishlisky was fined $25 by Magistrate Moke at No. 2 police station yesterday morning for firing off a revolver at his home, 2836 Liberty avenue. At No. 6 police station a fine of $25 was imposed on Frank Rismisk of Thirty-fourth street, who was charged with beating his wife.

Poorest Bedroom Most Expensive.

John and Thomas Smith, found sleeping in a coach in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards Saturday night, said they had no homes, and were discharged yesterday morning. William Bailey, found sleeping in a wagon in Grant street, was fined $25 and costs or 30 days to the workhouse.

MAKES A LEAP OF 40 FEET TO ESCAPE FROM A POSSE

Allegheny Man, After Violently Assaulting Mother and Brother, Flees from the Law and the Wrath of His Neighbors.

After probably fatally injuring his mother and viciously assaulting his brother, John Bodel made a leap of 40 feet and escaped from a policeman and a posse of citizens.

Bodel lives with his mother and brother, Gebhardt, popularly known as "Sport" Bodel, at 92 Straub's lane, Troy Hill, Allegheny. Since election day John, it is said, has been drinking heavily. Yesterday his mother asked him to sober up and get ready to return to work. John resented this advice, and his brother interfered, ordering him to cease abusing their mother. John attacked Gebhardt, knocking him down and then beating him over the head with a brick, cutting his brother's scalp in half a dozen places. Mrs. Bodel tried to separate her sons, when John, it is alleged, kicked her in the mouth, knocking her teeth down her throat.

Mrs. Bodel's screams brought Policeman Milton Brown and a crowd of citizens to the house. John saw them coming and fled. He dashed out of the house, and reaching the precipitous hillside above Spring Garden avenue, made a leap that carried him over 40 feet down the hillside. He alighted in soft mud, and rolled head over heels to the foot of the hill. Reaching the bottom, he regained his feet and dashed into the woods around Spring Garden avenue, where all trace of him was lost.

Mrs. Bodel is in a very serious condition and the physicians express grave doubts of her recovery.

MARRIED BY JUSTICE; COUPLE DOES PENANCE

Begging the pardon of the congregation for the scandal they had caused by being married by a justice of the peace, a young couple stood before the sanctuary rail in the Epiphany church yesterday morning. The church was crowded and the young couple was much embarrassed.

According to the rules of the church, no Catholic may be married by anybody but a priest, the only person who may administer a sacrament, and the Catholic church marriage is a sacrament. If a Catholic couple is married by a justice the marriage is perfectly valid in the eyes of the church; it is even a sacrament, but a sacrament administered by an unauthorized person.

To purge themselves of the sin thus committed the Catholic man and woman married not according to the rites of the church must repent, and in most cases part of the penance consists in standing up before the congregation and expressing sorrow for the deed.

In mercy to the young couple, the penance yesterday was inflicted at the 8 o'clock low mass, when ordinarily the congregation is not large. But part of the infliction consists in the notification by the priest at the earlier masses of the day that at a certain later mass a couple is to do this penance. Consequently, when the previous mass was over yesterday morning, many who had attended that service remained for the next to see the penance, so that the church was well filled.

The young man and young woman knelt during the mass in front of the rail. After mass a priest read to them the words which they were to say. They repeated them after the priest. The gist of them was that they had sinned in having been married out of the church; that they were heartily sorry for the sin they thus committed and the scandal they had caused the congregation and humbly begged pardon for the offense. The young man lives in Wilkinsburg. The young woman was a member of the Epiphany congregation.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION CLOSES WITH SERVICES

Delegates Fill Many Church Pulpits in Washington County During the Day.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, PA., Feb. 25.—The final sessions of the thirty-eighth annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian association was attended by thousands of people today. From 9 o'clock this morning until late tonight sessions were held throughout the borough and the buildings were crowded. The most remarkable session was the men's mass meeting at 3 p. m., when more than 1,500 delegates and male residents of Washington thronged the auditorium of the Second Ward school building to hear the addresses of C. C. Michener of New York, international industrial secretary, who spoke on "The Benefits of a Christian Life." Following the speaking more than 100 conversions were reported.

At 11 o'clock this morning union services were held in many of the churches of Washington and Canonsburg. Speakers and delegates from many sections filled pulpits.

The farewell session of the convention was held tonight in the First Episcopal church. More than 2,000 people were present. It was announced tonight that next Sunday would be observed throughout the state as Pennsylvania day. At that time the delegates from the various branches will make their reports and the suggestions made at the convention will be put into force.

Robert C. Lawrence to Appear.

The second of the series of entertainments and lectures being given at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church at Kirkpatrick street and Wylie avenue, will be held tonight. The entertainer is Robert C. Lawrence. He has appeared in Pittsburgh before and has met with success.

ANARCHISTS FIGHT POLICE WITH BOMBS

Six People Are Killed in Raid. Witte and Timiriozeff May Patch Up Peace.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ODESSA, Feb. 25.—The police this morning raided the house of three anarchists, who threw bombs which exploded and killed a police commissary and the janitor of the building and his wife. The Cossacks were summoned and bombarded the house, killing all three of the anarchists.

WARSAW, RUSSIAN POLAND, Feb. 25.—Another encounter between the National Democrats and the Socialists, the latter being bent on breaking up campaign meetings held by the former, took place today at Praga, a suburb of the city. One man was killed and 15 were wounded by revolver shots. Troops then surrounded the hall where the meeting was held and many arrests were made and a large quantity of weapons confiscated.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 25.—The efforts made to retain M. Timiriazeff, the minister of commerce, whose resignation was recently announced in the cabinet, came to a head tonight, when M. Timiriazeff at Count Witte's invitation dined with the premier and the two statesmen discussed for several hours the possibility of the withdrawal of the resignation.

The outcome of this conference is unknown, as M. Timiriazeff did not return to his residence until after midnight and thereafter was inaccessible, but it is certain to take strong assurances of a change in the attitude of the government to induce him to withdraw the resignation, which has not yet been officially accepted, and abandon the strong vantage point of a "defender of liberty," which he acquired by his opportune withdrawal.

The recent developments in the interior and reports from governors that the time is ripe for discarding in many localities the more severe measures adopted to cope with the revolution, on the other hand, make it essier to arrive at an understanding, though in view of the exchange of personalities over the causes for M. Timiriazeff's resignation and appeal to the retiring minister was probably a bitter pill for Count Witte to swallow.

ROOMMATES ARE FOUND SIDE BY SIDE IN RUINS

The Bodies of Three Boys Who Lost Their Lives at Kenyon Academy Are Recovered.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

GAMBIER, O., Feb. 25.—The charred bodies of Cadets Winfield Scott Kunkle, of Ashtabula, O.; J. E. Henderson, of Ridge Farm, Ill., and James J. Fuller, of Warren, O., were today found in the ruins of Delano hall, at Kenyon Military academy, which was ruined by fire. The bodies of Fuller and Henderson lay close together. They had been roommates. It is believed that they were suffocated to death in bed. The lifeless forms were also close to the beds they had occupied, and lay in the basement almost directly beneath their room. Kunkel's body had been carried to the west with the falling floors. The fathers of the cadets were present when the bodies were found.

Cadets Harry Barnes and Lenox Baker, both residents of Cleveland, were moved on cots to hospitals in Cleveland this morning. Barnes was much improved. Cadet J. R. Stearn, whose feet were burned and who sustained injuries by jumping from the burning building, went to his home in Cincinnati today. Cadets Alexander W. Walton of Cincinnati and Milan L. Bartlett, each of whom was burned about the arms, also left today.

There is no satisfactory explanation as to what caused the fire. Oily rags may have caused spontaneous combustion. The floors of the buildings were oiled, and this in part at least accounts for the rapidity with which the building burned.

Casto Gets Carnegie Check.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Capt. Mark Casto today received a check for $1,500 from the Carnegie hero fund commission and will use it as instructed, to lift the mortgage on his home in Pleasantville.

BARBARIC CRUELTY INFLICTED ON GIRL

Maltreated by Cossacks and Is Thrust Naked into Cell, Then Burned by Cigarets.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 25.—Great wrath has been aroused in Liberal circles by the publication of a letter from Mlle. Spiridonovo, the 17-year-old girl who shot M. Luzhenoffsky, chief of the secret police at Tamboff, in which she describes the indignities and brutalities to which she was subjected. On account of her youth and her self-sacrifice, in executing the sentence against M. Luzhenoffsky, she has been made one of the heroines of the revolution, and is called a second Charlotte Corday.

The letter says that after the shooting of Luzhenoffsky, whose bodyguard of Cossacks did not save him from five well-aimed bullets, Mlle. Spiridonovo was knocked down and beaten with the whips of the Cossacks and rifle butts.

She was dragged by her hair down stairs to a sleigh by the enraged Cossacks, taken to the police station, undressed and thrust into a damp, cold cell, where she was subjected to 11 hours of torment in order to force her to reveal the names of her accomplices.

The girl says that two officers took brutal pleasure in kicking her back and forth across her cell, tearing her hair, burning her flesh with their cigarets and threatening her with abandonment to the Cossacks unless she confessed.

Mlle. Spiridonovo is now in a hospital in a serious condition. Her skull is fractured in two places, one eye is injured and her body is a mass of bruises from head to foot. The newspapers demand the instant trial and punishment of the two officers, whose names are given, but the vengeance of the revolutionists will probably anticipate official action.

CHAINED TO A CORPSE.

Doleful Punishment of the Ancients Duplicated in Our Modern Life.

The Romans used to punish a murderer by chaining to his body the corpse of his victim. Wherever he went he dragged behind him the debris of his crime, the sleazy cadaver, revolting thing that was once a man.

Every day you see people dragging around with them the corpse of their sins. They can't get away from them. And many of them have become so intimate with these corpses that they become corpses themselves. The misery of these poor unfortunates has become constitutional with them. It fits them like an old shoe. They have become accustomed to it.

And there are thousands of humans who are walking the earth today with corpses attached to them—dyspeptic stomachs they can't get rid of. They have to get along the best they can with the stomachs they have. And the owners of said dyspeptic stomachs are to be found in every walk in life, suffering from some form of indigestion, first cousin to dyspepsia.

They wear that forlorn appearance, their energy is at zero, nothing interests them, and they interest no one, their faces are shrunk, their nerves are wilted and their shoulders sag. Are you one of the myriads who dandle and gratify their palates, at the sacrifice of their stomachs? Are you one of those who allow their senses to run riot, eating too much, drinking too much, eating at the wrong time, eating the half-cooked, the queer and the impossible?

Are you bloated after eating, and imagine that it is your food that fills you? Do you have nausea when you look upon this or that, rebel at one thing and be hungry for it, too, at the same time? And have you got a whole lot of other things the matter with your stomach that you know about but nobody else does, and can't explain? If so, you have dyspepsia, real dyspepsia. And the chances are you have had it a long time.

Your stomach is overworked, abused, fagged out. The gastric and digestive juices are weak, the muscles of the stomach are jaded, and the whole business needs new life. It needs something which will take hold of the food as it comes in and do the digesting, and let your stomach take a rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do that very thing. They contain a most powerful ingredient which helps the stomach in the process of digestion, cures dyspepsia, sour stomach, indigestion, heart-burn, eructations, acidity or fermentation. They invigorate the stomach, increase the flow of gastric juice, and do two-thirds of what the stomach would have to do without them. That gives the stomach some rest and a chance to get right again.

You will feel the change first in your mind and heart and then over your whole body. You'll feel rosy and sweet. That's the object. You can get these effective little tablets almost anywhere on earth for 50c a package.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the name.

Cooper's Cedar Chests have no equal for storing clothing and furs.

Monday, February 26, 1906.

Emperor William of Germany and the Empress Augusta Victoria are celebrating their silver wedding, concurrently with the marriage of their second son, Prince Eitel Fritz. They have done a gracious thing in refusing to accept from subjects any presents except money to be devoted to various charities named by the donors. The kaiser will be better thought of, if possible, by his people.

Apparently the railroads will fight the new Ohio law fixing maximum passenger fares at 2 cents a mile. That is their privilege. They have an unquestionable right to appeal to the courts if they think they are being injured. We must say the outlook is not good for a decision in their favor. The principle of fixing maximum rates has been sustained and their only hope seems to be proof that 2 cents a mile will not pay cost of the service.

City Treasurer Robinson of Allegheny has resigned, giving as one reason the additional work of the delinquent tax office. This may furnish some excuse for the new administration in Pittsburgh to continue the delinquent collector's office, but it will be a slim one. In abolishing the fat fees of the one office there is no reason why the other should not be given enough clerks to do the business. The best way to settle the contest for this office in Pittsburgh is to abolish the position.

Death has closed the career of Gen. David B. Henderson, formerly speaker of the house of representatives in Washington. It came as a merciful relief from the ailment with which Gen. Henderson was afflicted for more than a year. In fact, there is reason to believe certain acts near the close of this Iowa statesman's public life and his abrupt leaving of the arena were symptomatic of the encroachment of disease. He won high honors by strenuous effort and probably paid the price of his good health for them.

Practically no hope is entertained for the Santo Domingo treaty, Senator Lodge conceding its defeat. Democratic votes are needed for ratification and Senator Patterson appears to be the only member of that party who regards his oath as a senator as superior to the instructions of the party caucus. The result will be somewhat embarrassing to the administration temporarily. On the minority, however, will rest responsibility for the possible consequences. These may be more serious than failure of the treaty.

Now the senate is busying itself with the Philippine tariff and the statehood bills. There can be no reasonable objection to the senate making amendments to the latter measure, if it deems them necessary, but there is good ground for the contention it has no right to tamper with any bill affecting the raising of revenues. The Constitution provides such bills shall originate in the house, but the senate arbitrarily construes this provision to mean it may create a new measure by the process of "amendment."

Dictator Castro of Venezuela must have dined well yesterday. He is reported by the Associated Press to have declared he will "humble France, break up the Monroe doctrine, then start in to rid the country of Americans, Englishmen and Germans, who are worse than the Chinese." This sort of talk would be classed in Kentucky as a Bourbon product; in the boundless west it would be ascribed to liberal indulgence in fire water. Pulque may have the same effect, or, it may be, Castro has consumed the visible supply of champagne in Caracas as the first step in "downing the French." It is "heap big talk," to quote the less voluble Indian, but it's empty wind.

Some alarm was created in Pekin yesterday by appearance of the police armed with rifles and the taking of extraordinary precautions to guard the forbidden city. The alarm soon passed when the police discarded the unusual weapons, but no explanation could be secured for the demonstration. Foreign residents, generally, feel easy and secure. The date set by Wong Fong for an uprising passed Saturday without incident. China is peculiar. It is difficult to understand. It is a strange mixture of ancient superstition and of remarkable intelligence. It is likely to remain a menace to world security until the reformation now under way is complete.

New Assembly Districts.

A computation of returns from the recent election shows that Mr. Guthrie carried the wards comprised in five of the seven new legislative districts in the city and the one senatorial district that is to elect a member of the assembly this year. This does not mean these districts are necessarily Democratic, but it does mean the Republicans must nominate good candidates if they wish to carry them in the coming election.

Under the new Republican party rules the representative and senatorial candidates will be nominated in open primaries, by popular vote. The field is open to the best men in the party and we have no fear that inferior men will be nominated. However, it is an old proverb that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" and we may venture to paraphrase that eternal patriotism is the price of party success. With none but good men nominated and the record of the extra session to stand on the Republicans should be able to send to Harrisburg a solid delegation to help complete the legisiative reforms so well begun.

Now is the time to consider the situation and prepare to meet it. It cannot be doubted the opposition will be more alive and active than ever.

Dr. Dixon's Error.

Commissioner Dixon of the state department of health is preparing to prosecute all teachers and members of school boards who do not enforce the vaccination law. The result will be to exclude a number of children from school privileges, temporarily at least, as it has been decided they cannot be compelled to submit to the operation, nor prosecuted for non-attendance when refused admission.

In the opinion of The Gazette Dr. Dixon has taken hold of the wrong end of the problem. In the conflict of statutes he should have ruled in favor of the greater pending final settlement. There are no two opinions about the benefits of education; the advantage of vaccination is the subject of bitter controversy. Great Britain, after 40 years experience with compulsory vaccination—and two epidemics of smallpox during the same period—has repealed the law. Many eminent physicians and surgeons dispute the efficacy of vaccination and charge positive evils to its account. All agree, however, the children should attend school.

Without taking any position on the controversial issue, whether vaccination is beneficial, The Gazette believes the power of the state health department is wrongfully employed in the enforcement of a controverted benefit to the detriment of one that is fully conceded. Assuming the prophylaxis of vaccination, of what advantage is it to force children to remain out of school because they do not submit to it? They are in as much peril from infection out of school as in, are as dangerous a menace to society at large. And, if vaccination protects, there is no danger of infecting the vaccinated in school if one of the unvaccinated should succumb to infection.

It is the duty of the legislature at its next session to either make the vaccination law independently compulsory, or to repeal it. Meantime Dr. Dixon had better keep his hands off in the interest of education.

Joseph Folk, Free Trader.

Gov. Folk of Missouri is exhibiting all the traits of the professional reformer—for office. He owes his election as chief executive of his state in large measure to Republicans, but has rarely shown any sense of obligation on that score. At a recent Democratic banquet in Kansas he sailed into the arena of national politics by making a bitter attack on the protective tariff principle. While there is a respectable element of the Republican party favorable to revision of the tariff they want it on strictly protective lines.

Gov. Folk, like the majority of Democrats, rails at the "robber tariff," without any specifications as to the exact character of the alleged robbery. In other words, he is against all protection. This is most clearly shown in his Kansas speech. His phrases are reminiscent of every Democratic platform enunciated in the past 16 years, denouncing the tariff as criminal, and as a robbery conducted by grafters loaded with ill-gotten wealth wrung from the people by legalized special privileges. Gov. Folk in these extremely radical declarations has taken his stand on the side of free trade, without even the small saving virtue of "incidental protection." He would not, he makes plain, resort to the tariff to protect American wages, or for any other purpose.

Gov. Folk came into the limelight of public notice through some very good work done in St. Louis as a relentless prosecutor of political criminals under the direction of a newspaper reporter. Now he has become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. He is catering to the radical element in the Democratic party in the hope it will look farther south than usual for a Moses to lead it out of Egypt and across the Red sea.

A Startling Proposal.

Dr. Takaki, a surgeon of the Japanese navy, stated in the course of an address in Philadelphia, the other day, he contemplated growing the Japanese to greater stature by giving them American food. This is a somewhat startling proposition. It has some foundation in fact. It is a matter of statistical information the average size of Americans has increased during a century past, though it may be said of colonial times "there were giants in those days."

Dr. Takaki may find his undertaking difficult despite the apparently favorable facts. He may not find it easy to determine which of the American foods is most conducive to great stature. In fact there is reason to believe that no food, in gross, has any influence in that direction, while certain elements that may be in many articles of diet have tendency to favor healthy growth. Of these, lime and silica may be mentioned in particular.

These mineral elements are more an incident to certain soils than to any kinds of food. Other things being equal, soils freshly taken from a "wild" state are richer in the soluble mineral elements than those long under cultivation. The "wearing out" may be prevented by scientific fertilization though the means to this end are but imperfectly understood. This subject has been much considered by Julius Hensel, the eminent German biological chemist, who not only concluded stature depends much on these elements in the food, but health and long life as well.

Dr. Takaki's proposition puts the subject in a different light from Dr. Hensel's theses, but the principle is the same. America is a "new" country and the Japanese doctor would take its food as a standard. Dr. Hensel, in pursuit of the same object, might prefer to select food from any severe climate where the rocks are rent by winter frosts, rather than from the tropics where soil is the product of decay and insect ravages. After all, why should the Japanese grow big? They have shown splendid endurance; they are capable of careful planning. Mere physical force was of more importance in the stone age, when all soils were "new," than in these days of steam and water prime movers and transmitted electrical energy. Health and intellect are more to be prized than brief strength.

Rumored Compromise.

Vice President Lewis of the mine workers states there will be a compromise in the bituminous districts on the rate of two years ago. President Robbins of the Pittsburgh Coal Company emphatically denies there has been any consideration of such a thing. The demand of the miners at Indianapolis was for an advance almost twice as great as would be involved in the alleged compromise. As neither the miners nor operators have taken any measures since the adjournment at Indianapolis, this tale of a compromise looks like a plan of the miners to "feel" the situation.

It is possible proposals may have been made, tentatively, by one side or the other, which would afford some foundation for the compromise story, but before it can have any substance there must be a "referendum to the lodges," on the one side, and a reference to all of the operators on the other. As the matter stands at the moment the report is encouraging, because it indicates willingness on the part of the miners to recede from the extreme demand for a 10 per cent advance all around.

Mayor-elect Guthrie in Atlantic City says the Pittsburgh election was disgraceful. It was—owing to the bulldozing by Guthrie's friends in the police administration.

Making oil and gas pipe lines common carriers may be easy in congress, but it would stump a Dutch lawyer to identify his package at the point of delivery.

While a sea level canal looks good it is a wise tailor that cuts according to his cloth. There is a big difference between $139,000,000 and $227,000,000.

Should Germany and France fail to agree it does not mean war—merely an accession of energy in the comic paper cartoons.

Healing of the breach between the President and Ben Tillman is less important than enactment of a rate regulation law.

IN THE TIME OF SNOWS.

Out of the bitter North
Where the wan ice legions are,
My spirit fareth forth
Seeking the Southern star.

Ranges adown the day,
Hurries athwart the night,
Like an osprey on its way
Over the spindrift white.

Many the lures that call—
Perfume, vision and voice:
The mock bird's madrigal
Bidding the heart rejoice.

The swoon of the jasmine scent
Where bough to bough by the vine
Is married; the firmament
Amber and sapphirine.

And the palms—O their beckoning hands,
Graceful and all ugleam,
Lifted over the lands
That drowse in an endless dream!

What shall stay me? Naught—
Naught shall bind or bar.
For I fly on the wings of thought
Seeking the Southern star!

Quiet Observations on Ways of the World

Get in the Swim, and Swim; That's How to Do It.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

All you have to do here is to get into the swim and then swim.

Money is the best sort of motor for pushing your boat along, and the more powerful your motor the faster and further you go.

Floaters don't count. Any old dead fish can float down stream, but it takes a live one to go up where the good feeding, and where sportive fishermen do most congregate.

And what's the use of being a fish if you are not worth being angled for; and if you are angled for you will stand a reasonably fair chance of being caught. Indeed, you surely will be caught if you can flash up a silver side or can give a golden tinge to the element in which you are disporting yourself.

There are lots of dead ones floating down stream, and some that are as good as dead, having had their air tanks punctured.

Airiness is essential to success, more or less. Pure air, hot air—any sort of air that will keep you afloat, will do. But, without gold or silver ballasts, and a thimbleful or two of brains, you are likely to soar too high, so high that you collapse and come down busted.

* * *

Modified Mormonism seems to be popular hereabouts, as you will be led to conclude after visiting a few of the many fashionable cafes where late diners meet to eat and drink, and to show off Paris gowns and London trousers.

Under the electrolier to the right is gathered a bunch of swift swimmers. The lady wearing a diamond dog collar of dazzling brightness, and a few clothes that a queen might be proud of, toys with a thin glass that sparkles, and smiles right and left, had a million score or dollars when she left the golden west a few years ago.

Across the table sits a pretty little fellow, corsetted and groomed to the limit. He is her No. 4. The others—one, two and three, are alive, and on good terms with the fair lady who bore their names respectively for short periods.

To No. 1 she said, after two or three years' trial: "Here's a million. Skidoo, have a good time and be happy. If you can't be entirely happy, be as happy as you can. Don't worry about me, for I'll manage to get along somehow."

Number two and three each got a cool million along with their dismissal papers. Number four is waiting, only waiting, for his orders and his million in cash. In the meantime he is getting along quite comfortably as the real husband of a really rich society woman.

He didn't seem entirely comfortable in stays, but his wasp-waist surely was fetching, stunning, in fact. Besides, he wiggled as he walked.

* * *

There was a suggestion of trouble in the atmosphere surrounding the golden beauty from the west, as this lady used to be called. The cause of it was finally discovered and pointed out by a gentleman who knew whereof he spoke.

It was all due to the presence of a gentleman who has been married six times and is now the observed of all darling widows, fetching girls, and anxious mamas.

The lady from the west is much averse to being rated as second-class in the marriage and divorce fame.

It would not be surprising to hear of her No. 4 being retired on a goodly fortune and before long.

The much-envied gentleman is up against what he calls a prodigious proposition, which is nothing more nor less than to devise ways and means for spending an annual income of $2,000,000. This flood of riches pours in upon him from estates in South America and foreign countries. Nor did he invite this avalanche of gold. It came upon him through having been the son of his father.

He feels that he must spend it rather than invest it. To invest it would require brains, thought and attention, which is too much like work to be thought of for a moment.

Three or four of those who were his wives are now living in luxury on the munificent fortunes that he settles on them at the parting of the matrimonial ways.

They do say that he is now looking for a competent helpmate, one who can make money fly like leaves before a brisk wind.

He is a really good looking fellow, as well as a good fellow, for he looks after the comfort of several other good looking fellows who haven't the price.

* * *

These are extreme cases, but only from a financial point of view. There are others, many others in the same class who would show with equal brightness if they had money enough to draw the limelight upon them.

Nor are divorces really essential in order to figure in this sort of society. At least there is much talk about married men and women going as-you-please, and with whom they please. Nor do these seem to care if they are pointed out as high-class social rounders.

But don't jump to the conclusion that there are no good men and women here. Some would have you believe that there are hardly enough to save the city on the terms offered to the cities of Sodom.

There are many, very many, good people here, nor do you have to search closely to find them. On every hand you see honest, faithful wives and mothers who have honest and faithful husbands, but you don't find them in popular cafes and places where the fast ones most congregate.

The average visitor is anxious to see the bad side of New York the first thing, and when he has satiated his vicious appetite he is not in condition of mind and heart to see and appreciate the good side.

The respectable, reputable side of New York is most satisfactory to those who do not prefer to know disreputable people, and to hobnob with adventurers and sharpers.

This is as true of our own Pittsburgh as it is of Paris, London or New York.

Good Stories of Pith and Moment.

CULLED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Their Opposition Explained.

A group of southern Democrats in the house were standing talking together at the close of the day's session when a Pennsylvania newspaper man came by and said:

"What is the reason you southern Democrats object to the passage of this Ohio ship canal bill of Dalzell's?"

"I'll tell you," said Slayton of Texas, confidentially. "It is going to cost $35,000,000, and you can't make a southern Democrat believe there is that much money in the world."—New York Times.

Pennsylvanian's Contrivance.

He wandered into the lobby of the American house yesterday afternoon with the queer contraption hanging on the front of his hat. He said it was the newest way to smoke a cigar and that he was going to patent the device if it became popular. Attached to the front of his hat was a rubber holder for a cigar. From it ran a tube to the mouth, to which there was a hard rubber mouthpiece. He smoked away complacently while people made remarks.

"Queer."

"Isn't it the limit?"

"Wonder where he got it?"

Upon being asked his name the stranger said he was Eugene Schaud, a tailor from Butler, Pa., where he keeps a shop on one of the main streets. He declares that he got his idea for his cigar holder in Europe, where he has been traveling for some months. One advantage, Schaud says, is the cigar doesn't get hot and burn the lips. Another is that when not actually puffing at the contrivance the smoke doesn't curl up one's nose.

The arrangement must be worn on a stiff hat, being held to the rim with a steel clip.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Identity in Street Cars.

The car was crowded and there being two or three polite men left in Indianapolis one of the two or three gave her a seat in the forward end of the car. He remained on the platform to finish a cigar. She always lets him do that.

When the conductor came along the smoker presented two tickets.

"Who is this for?"

"The lady up in front."

"Yes, but there are several up there."

"Oh, well, let's see! I'm paying for the one under Eat-'em-Quick Biscuits."—Indianapolis News.

Equal to the Occasion.

More than 25 years ago the Rev. Edward Everett Hale had occasion to visit the town of Hingham, and, rising early the morning after his arrival there, he started out for a walk. There had arrived during the night before a circus company, and all the residents seemed anxious to get a first glimpse of any one who had any connection with the show.

While Mr. Hale was enjoying his lonely walk he noticed a rather elderly woman walking toward him. She was very straight and thin, and wore a checked gingham sunbonnet, and as she approached him, looking anxiously from his head to his feet and then back to his head, she asked in a nervous half-whisper: "Say, be you one of the circus people?"

Mr. Hale, without hesitating a second, answered: "No; be you?"—Boston Herald.

Why George Got Red.

A business man has a daughter and also a confidential clerk, and the confidential clerk has for some time been attentive to the daughter, but he has not—or had not a month ago—sufficient courage to come to the point, though the young woman, goodness knows, has never done anything to scare him off, for he is a first-class fellow in every respect. The other evening he was making a call, and about 9 o'clock her father came in.

"Ah, George," he said, "how about that deal we were talking of this afternoon? Did you see the party?"

"Yes, sir," replied George, "and I expected to see you this evening and tell you about it."

"My dear," said the father, turning to his daughter, "will you retire for a few minutes? George wants to speak business for a while."

The daughter rose up, but hesitated.

"Why do I have to go?" she asked, doubtfully.

"Because, dear," smiled the father, "you are not interested. Why do you want to stay?"

She blushed and fidgeted.

"Because, papa," she twittered, "I'd rather like to hear George talk business just once."

Then George got red, and the father looked at them both significantly, and the girl fled.—Tit-Bits.

Why McKinley Was a Mason.

At a dinner to the soverign grand and grand consistories of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, given by consistories of the metropolitan district, Gen. Horatio C. King gave some reminiscences of the civil war and told how President McKinley came to join the order.

"It was during the campaign in the Shenandoah valley," he said. "McKinley, then a captain, and myself, his ranking officer at that time, were walking through a hospital tent in which were a number of confederate wounded. The captain seemed surprised to see the surgeon in charge of the ward talking to some of the confederates as if he had known them all his life. He shook hands with them all, giving here and there small sums of money until his supply was exhausted. McKinley asked the surgeon if he knew the men.

"No," he replied.

"Well, do you ever expect to get the money back?" McKinley asked.

"I presume some of them will return it when they can," said the doctor.

"Why did you give it to them, anyway?"

"They were Masons," said the doctor. The reply impressed McKinley so that he immediately joined the lodge at Winchester, made famous by "Sheridan's Ride." After the war he took his dimit to Canton lodge.—New York Sun.

Washington County Leads.

From the reports which we have been able to secure from the different counties in the state it is evident that Washington county is in the lead in the question of the adoption of the new system of payment of road taxes. It is only another indication of the fact that Washington county not only leads in the matter of good roads sentiment but in all other progressive matters.—Washington Observer.

Long Hair No Distinction.

Waxhey Yahola, a fullblood Creek Indian living near Okfuskee, entered Carlton's barber shop Tuesday evening and requested a haircut. Yahola is 75 years old, and this is the first time his long, black locks had ever come in contact with the scissors. The old man can't speak a word of English.—Okmulgee (Ind. Ter.) Democrat.

IN GOOD HUMOR.

"I see they cut the White House wedding cake with a sword."

"At our house we use a hatchet."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Isn't it ridiculous of these scientists to say kissing is dangerous?" scornfully remarked the pretty young man.

"Why, of course, it's dangerous," replied the crabbed old bachelor.

"What disease could it possibly lead to, if we—"

"Matrimony."—Philadelphia Press.

"What's the reward offered for the capture of that bank robber, sheriff?"

"We're offering $100 for his capture or information that will lead to his capture."

"That's not big enough. You'll never catch him."

"Well, if we don't get him in a day or two I'm going to offer trading stamps."—Milwaukee Journal.

Mamie—I believe in woman's rights.

Bertie—Then you think every woman should have a vote?

Mamie—No; but I think every woman should have a voter.—Answers.

"After all, don't you think the grafters are the ones that get along?"

"Well, yes. Just now a good many of them seem to be getting along pretty well toward the penitentiary!"—Detroit Free Press.

"I am greatly troubled with kleptomania," exclaimed the fashionably dressed woman, as she bustled into the drug department. "Now, what would you advise me to take for it?"

"Your departure, madame, by all means," replied the floorwalker, and bowed her to the elevator.—Puck.

Epoch of Doing the Truth.

The Church Is in the Business of Industrial Christianity.

By A MINISTER.

"Man is incurably religious," said a good and learned Frenchman, who knew the wells of life, and was radiant with rational optimism. "Man is a religious animal," said another leader of men, who acted on the belief. Indeed, this is the sum of wise thinking, even among us in the routine of ordinary things of everyday life. Religion is the thing that makes a man different from all other creatures.

How is it, then, that we have so many "religions" in the world, so many sects? If we are all alike in being animated by the same thing, isn't it strange that we do not more nearly agree and heal the diversions, which number among Christians in this country about 150? Do not the sects infest rather than bless the land?

Religion is the truth of God, and surely there ought to be no great difference in such a clear field. That seems to be true.

But what can we say about but less things than the truth of God? What shall we say of the man who plumes himself on his unyielding political partisanship, at the same time that he sadly shakes his head over the disagreements in the churches? What of the man who has his own peculiar way of running his business, who says on Sunday morning, with so much breadth and inconsistency, "Really, it is a shame the Christian people are so divided?"

As a matter of fact, each of these men, who are only types, is as severe in his sectarianism in another form as is the most rigid adherent of some peculiar tenet of religious belief. Sects have not always been beautiful, nor has any one of them ever fully grasped the cosmopolitan spirit of real religion. But neither has any man comprehended the fullness of any work in life. We cannot be partisans in business, politics, philosophy, and as housekeepers, which we all are, and yet see God face to face.

And yet this is true. We are all of us much more united than we suspect. There is more actual unity among us in our living than there is in our thinking. We hold together marvelously well in practical religion. Not what denomination we belong to, but what sort of men we are, determines our religion.

We have agreed that religion is something which is written in our natures. It is neither to our praise nor to our blame that we think so differently. The very fact that we differ in thought shows that God has not to do with thinking so much as with the very gift of religion itself. He gave us that. And His power to make us do the truth is the power, not ourselves, which makes for righteousness. That is to say, when we get right down to the best that we know of religion today, we find that we are doing the truth in harmony, even while we are quarreling about the truth in our sects.

Men are living examples right now that religion, the truth, is something to be done. While we are impatiently clamoring for the undoing of creeds which it will require generations to make universal and good, we wisely go on together under the guidance of the Supreme Being, doing His truth.

Hence a working church is more important than a preaching church. For broad as a preacher would be, he cannot be so cosmopolitan as he ought to be, or as effective, as united and enthusiastic workers will be in doing the truth.

Some of the "little systems" which are having their day are interesting, and they all have somewhat of truth within them, but they are not the stuff which makes religion the power for good.

Real religion, pure religion, religion undefiled of sectarian things, is industrial. This is the epoch of doing the truth.

The rector of St. George's, in New York, Dr. Rainsford, who must lay his labors down, is not distinguished as a preacher of truth, though he is a strong advocate of the gospel in the pulpit. His main strength, both in keeping with human hunger and God's way, is in something else. He and his congregation do the truth. More than 8,000 members in his church in 22 years is a sign of the industrial times. Like the Great Preacher, we are told, he went about doing good.

* * *

We are coming out of that religious period which paid the highest praise to the man who knew. Now it is the man who does who is exalted. This is not an age which laughs at learning, however. It is a time which demands effective education.

Why is there a current notion that a man who comes out of college is such a misfit in the world? Are colleges a failure? No, only partly successful. Why do discerning men in the churches agree that a man who goes through a divinity school has to unlearn and learn again in order to make himself of much worth? The answer is not far to seek. The truth has been merely an array of facts which have been stored away line upon line, precept upon precept.

The business of giving the truth has so largely been the cold, lifeless process of packing unmeaning, ineffectual words into a memorizing brain. At best these words have been expressive of mere ideas. Such sowing of ideas is a vain undertaking. The truth must be joined to the will. The idea must become the ideal. Then it has life and power. It is good only when it moves a man. Truth isn't worth anything until it gets possession of a man and makes him act.

There is no such thing as truth for truth's sake. Truth is for God's sake, and the growth of the Godlikeness of His children. That is the reason we count a man a most vicious and yet pitiable member of society who has fine attainments and is bad—because he does not the truth which he knows.

A man of truth is not always a class-leader in school and many a bright child is not a child of truth. One of the greatest Christian philosophers this country has ever known is chiefly remembered by his sodden end, though his books are masterly. And right in our community such men may be seen every day.

It is odd that we have had such unreal ideas about the truth in religion. A man learns the truth in the science and art of medicine in order to do the truth of a physician. All men see that plainly. A man reads his law in order to do the law for his clients and in the halls of legislation. Likewise a lad enters an apprenticeship to learn the truth of a given trade in order that he may work at it, as he says; in other words, do the truth of the trade.

The truth of religion is only different in degree. Everybody, we repeat, is religious. Everybody is learning religious truth. Surely it is not for mere repeating in a Sunday school class, but for doing the right when the wrong might be done. It doesn't make any difference where a man, a woman or a child is engaged, this greatest of all truth, which affects immediately the character, can be done every day and every hour in the day. Along with the learning by the intellect is the incessant learning by the heart and the will.

* * *

About 1,900 years ago a lad who was destined to lead the race in doing the truth went regularly to the temple where the doctors taught.

He had curiosity, but he had more than curiosity. He had intellect, and yet more than intellect. Something in this hungering mind amazed the teachers whom he questioned.

He was so different from the average youth taught in the schools. Every word he learned increased his zeal, and with every increase in zeal there was a thirst for more knowledge.

Ordinarily, then as now, much learning made a student bookish and out of touch with life. But this boy Jesus "grew in wisdom" and "in favor with God and man." He had a vision of God's plan for every human being, and He realized His vision.

Every truth that He apprehended He made a part of Himself, and it hardened His moral fiber and inspirited His being. The more He learned the better He became.

Today He is an example to men in all the earth. He became infinitely good as He became infinitely wise. This is the reasonableness of the life of Christ and the secret of His power in the world.

CASUAL GLIMPSES AROUND THE CITY

Notes About People and Events in Which Pittsburghers Are Interested.

The people of Toledo want a new postoffice building. They have wanted one for some years, but at present they want it more than ever. In fact, they want it so bad they have sent a committee of their representative citizens to Washington to see if the treasury department cannot see its way clear to give $1,000,000 for a government building which will be in keeping with the importance and bearing of the city itself. The committee passed through the smoke belt last night in a special car. President R. A. Bartley of the Toledo chamber of commerce was in charge of the party, but they did not necessarily need a chaperon. There were 12 persons in the party and the interior of the private car might have been mistaken for a great many things. The people of Toledo send their committees in regal style. There were three porters in the car. Two wore white aprons. The committee will arrive in Washington this morning and at noon will be closeted in a private dining-room in the New Willard with Secretary Leslie M. Shaw of the treasury. Then some congressmen will be met and the necessity of a stately government building in the Buckeye state will be pointed out. On the advice of Secretary Shaw the citizens of Toledo purchased one block of buildings and razed them. It cost $175,000 for the property, and it is meant for the postoffice site. Toledo has many substations. They have not room for their carriers and employes. It is thought no trouble will be met in getting the money for Uncle Sam's new suburban residence.

Choir Attracts Large Audience.

The rendition of Mendelssohn's "O, Come, Let Us Sing," by a mixed choir of 50 voices, with organ and orchestra accompaniment, at St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal church, Wilkinsburg, yesterday, was a pronounced success. The church was not large enough to contain the people who desired to hear this chorus. It is the intention of Prof. George Davis, the organist and choirmaster, to continue these musical events.

Knox Rate Bill Amendment.

The amendment to the rate bill offered by Senator Knox recommends itself by its apparent reasonableness and because of its source. The senator has given special attention to this question, particularly in its legal aspect. His eminence and successes as a lawyer give the greatest weight to his conclusions on a subject which he has carefully studied. He is known to be in sympathy with the principle of railroad regulation, but is sensible of the constitutional difficulties in dealing with the matter in legislation.—Philadelphia Press.

Martyrs Without Martyrdom.

The Hon. William Howard Taft declines to shudder at those old bogies the Pretorian guard and militarism. Mr. Taft's singular callousness doesn't alter the fact that two men and a half in Boston—and whether the Hon. Erving Winslow is an integer or a fraction let no man ask—two men and a half are sitting on Boston's shore, waiting, hoping and asking to be arrested. And nobody will gratify them. If this thwarting of a noble patriotic ambition isn't militarism, what is it?—New York Sun.

Royal Holdings in America.

The royal families of Sweden, Spain, and Italy all own lots in New York. Kaiser William owns several parcels of New York land and has been for some years a heavy investor in western property. The king of England inherited from his mother a piece of real estate on Nassau street, New York. King Edward owns some thousands of acres of western land.—Philadelphia Record.

A Pertinent Query.

A Massachusetts paper announces the death of "the oldest true daughter of the revolution." There won't be any rumpus on the question of age, but what is meant by that adjective "true" as here employed? Is there a ribald son of a coddish who dares to insinuate that there is any other kind of a d. of the revolution?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FORMALLY MADE POPE'S PRELATES

Solemn Investiture of Monsignors Tobin, Kittell and Suehr With the Robes of Office.

BISHOP CANEVIN OFFICIATES

The investiture of the three Pittsburgh domestic prelates of Pope Pius X., Monsignori F. L. Tobin, Joseph Suehr and William Kittell, took place last night before an immense congregation at the Church of the Epiphany. Bishop Canevin officiated at all the services. The investiture is the formal conferring of the papal honor through the bishop, and the donning of the monsignor's robes. When in Rome the domestic prelates may say mass in the private chapel of the pope in the vatican.

Fully 100 priests of the diocese attended the ceremonies of the investiture, it being the first time that so many monsignori were invested at one time in Pittsburgh. Each of the priests to be honored had distributed 300 tickets to the church, and the 300 thus invited, gathered with the hundreds of others who gained admittance, filled the church.

The ceremonies began at 7:30 p. m. with pontifical vespers, Bishop Canevin being the celebrant. Father Martin Ryan was the assistant priest, the deacons of honor were Fathers Francis Keane and H. J. Goebel; Father John Gerzynski was the deacon, Father Bonaventure Piscopo the sub-deacon, and Father Miles Sweeney the master of ceremonies.

At the conclusion of the vespers the papal documents conferring the honor were read. Then followed the blessing of the robes by the bishop, and the investiture. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor John Boyle of Johnstown, vicar general of the Altoona diocese, preached the sermon.

The ceremonies were concluded with the solemn benediction of the blessed sacrament, given by the bishop, after which an informal luncheon was served to the visiting priests in the hall of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, across the street.

Mgr. Tobin is vicar general of the diocese and rector of St. Mary's church, Forty-sixth street. He was born in Dublin in 1840, was ordained priest in 1862, was appointed pastor of St. James' church, West End, in 1870, and was appointed to St. Mary's some years ago.

Mgr. William Kittell is the chancellor of the diocese. He was born in Ebensburg in 1850, was in the college of the Propaganda in Rome from 1867 to 1875, in which year he was ordained in the basilica of St. John Lateran by Cardinal Patrizi. He attended to several missions for some years, was a pastor in Uniontown, and in 1893 was made chancellor by the late Bishop Phelan.

Mgr. Joseph Suehr was born in Dinsheim, Alsace, in 1847. He came to America with his parents in 1853, the family settling in Allegheny. He was ordained in 1870, became pastor at Verona in 1873, and in 1878 was promoted to the church of SS. Peter and Paul, where he is still rector.

J. F. WALLACE RAPS GOVERNMENT METHOD

Says It Is Impossible for Engineer to Change Modern Ideas for It.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—John F. Wallace, formerly chief engineer of the Panama canal, contributed an article to the March number of "The Engineering Magazine," recounting his observations and experience during the year in which he was in charge of the construction work in the canal zone. Mr. Wallace declares that "it will require more time and money to construct a high level canal on the 85-foot plan, under the present method of government control, than it will to construct a sea level canal providing the work is accomplished by modern efficient business methods."

He advocates either placing the work in the hands of one man—a practical engineer—with unlimited authority, or letting the work to one large contracting firm.

The article says in part:

"It should be apparent to every thinking man that when work must be conducted 2,000 miles from a seat of government, a policy imposing the necessity of referring all important questions to Washington and submitting them there to men who necessarily cannot be conversant with the conditions on the isthmus unless they are informed by the parties on the ground, cannot give satisfactory results.

Either the work should be put into the hands of one strong man, with practically unlimited authority, combining the technical and scientific training of the engineer with the administrative and executive ability of a man of force; or the same result should be accomplished through letting of the work to a contracting firm.

If the experience had not been so serious, I should look back to my first connection with this enterprise and the experience gained therewith, and smile to think I had been so innocent as to suppose myself able to overcome the long-settled influences heretofore indicated.

The usefulness of any man who might be called in as an engineer of demonstrated capacity, to supervise an enterprize of this character is measured by the extent to which he may be permitted to use his own methods. To expect that any person who is really qualified to conduct the work will radically change his methods and adapt himself to moss-grown government methods, is to expect the impossible.

It demands that a man should be content to ignore the instincts of his profession and to subject himself to the various influences brought to bear upon him.

PLEA OF HER HUSBAND DOES NOT AVAIL PRISONER

Helen Labatoski, who was arrested on the South Side Saturday evening for shoplifting, was held for court yesterday. John Labatoski, husband of the prisoner, made a pitiful plea for the release of his wife on account of her two small children at home, whom he would be compelled to place in an institution. The plea was in vain, however, as the gravity of the offense made a hearing in court imperative. The usual number of drunk and disorderly cases was disposed of with light fines.

Mike Lungo and Archie Banks were arrested at the hold-up place near the Tenth street bridge in Second avenue. The former had a pair of knucklers and was yesterday fined $25 and costs or 30 days, and Banks $5 or 10 days.

FREEBORN WANTS FALL MASTER BUT GETS MORGUE INSTEAD—MIXUP

A one-act comedy was enacted on the South Side yesterday in which the principals were a police sergeant, a deputy coroner and a dog; the latter a "dead one," by the way. After a stormy scene, in which all but the dog were participants, there were profuse apologies and offers of a drink.

The play opened when Acting Sergeant Charles Freeborn was notified that a dead dog was occupying the corner at South Twenty-seventh and Carson streets. He called up, as he thought, the city fall master, but got the number of the morgue, which is directly under it.

"Hello," shouted the sergeant, "Send to Twenty-seventh and Carson streets for a dead dog."

"What is the name?" was the answer flashed back.

"You'll have to search me," replied Freeborn.

"Well, is it male or female?" was asked.

The sergeant thought this might be a new system of identification in the dog morgue and replied:

"Indeed, you'll have to ask the policeman who reported it."

"Well, if you know anything, can you tell me whether they are married or single, and the address, so we can send over to investigate," was the next question, and it denoted a rapid increase in anger.

Freeborn by this time was beginning to feel a trifle "hot under the collar" himself, and said:

"I don't know who you are, but you seem to think that this is a big joke. I have told you already all you need to know, and the quicker you send that wagon over for the dog, the better it will be for you."

"Oh, I see," said the voice at the other end of the line. "There has been some mistake here. You are talking to the morgue, and we don't usually look after the dog cases."

It then dawned upon Freeborn what he had done, and a look at the telephone number confirmed his suspicions.

LARKIN WILL NOT STOP BOND ISSUE

Bigelow Says Ordinance Will Be Introduced as Soon as Tax Bills Are Passed.

SHEPHERD MAY BE DIRECTOR

"The ordinance for the $2,000,000 bond ordinance for water extension and judgments will be introduced in councils as soon as the tax bills are passed. The tax bills will be passed tomorrow without any trouble," said Director Bigelow yesterday. Mr. Bigelow denied any intention to postpone the bond issue until the new administration assumes charge.

Controller Larkin has declared that he will not sign any more water bonds without the advice of his attorney or the order of the supreme court unless the money voted for water improvements is used in the order in which it was voted—filtration, supply, distribution and meters.

"Mr. Larkin will not refuse to sign the bonds," said Mr. Bigelow. The director does not take seriously the controller's threats to refuse to sign water bonds or to interfere with the installation of meters. The new bond issue will be divided into $1,000,000 for water extension and $1,000,000 for the payment of judgments against the city.

A Second Bond Issue.

Besides the $2,000,000 bond issue for water extension and judgments there will be a second bond issue this year, in June, of $2,000,000 for filtration. The last installment of the $5,000,000 issue of bonds authorized last year will be issued and sold next in June, 1907, when $1,000,000 will be put on the market. With the $1,000,000 to be issued this year for the extension of pipe lines, and the $2,500,000 for filtration issued in 1900, there will have been issued next year $8,500,000 for water improvements since 1900.

Water improvements will be the biggest task of the department of public works during the next three years, and Director Bigelow, who has been the most enthusiastic advocate of filtration in Pittsburgh, will, on the first Monday of April, when he goes out of office, turn this big project over to his successor, whom Mayor Guthrie will pick. Considering the fact that most of the attention of the director of public works will be devoted during the next administration to completing the filtration plant and extending the water system, it is the opinion of many that a man of experience or ability in that particular line should be chosen as director of public works.

Boom for Supt. Shepherd.

Some of the independent leaders, who are expected to have much to say during the Guthrie administration, have expressed themselves in favor of promoting A. B. Shepherd from the superintendency of the water bureau to the directorship of public works. Mr. Shepherd is considered an expert hydraulic engineer, and his appointment, it is claimed, would divorce the office from politics, which is the policy the mayor-elect is said to favor.

Both branches of the city councils are called to meet today. Two sessions of select are called, one, adjourned from last Wednesday to this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the instance of Dr. Burns, to adopt the Brand light resolution, and the other meeting, the regular semi-monthly session, called for 3 o'clock. Director Bigelow does not wish the Brand resolution adopted, but he does want the tax bills passed at the regular session this afternoon.

The common branch is called to meet tonight, but there is nothing of importance on the calendar for the body to consider.

ROBINSON QUITS; BOOM FOR KOPP

Claims Work Will Be Too Much With Addition of Delinquent Tax Office.

MAY RAISE SALARY TO $5,000

This morning City Treasurer Andrew L. Robinson of Allegheny will resign from his position, and it is likely Mayor Wyman will appoint R. M. Kopp to succeed Robinson.

Yesterday Select Councilman John W. Robinson of the Fourth ward, a brother of the city treasurer, verified the rumor that his brother was going to resign, and gave as the reason the consolidation of the treasurer's office and the office of the collector of delinquent taxes. He said it meant too much work.

Treasurer Robinson, his brother and others were busy on the treasurer's books yesterday and were working to have everything in shape for today. Mr. Robinson claims to be tired of the strenuous work and glad to get away from it.

Mayor Wyman could not be found yesterday to be quoted on the truth of Kopp's appointment. Mr. Kopp is a warm personal friend of Mayor-elect Charles F. Kirschler, and if he is appointed by Wyman will be kept in the office by Mayor Kirschler, it is thought.

Mr. Kopp has been in Atlantic City for a few days, but is expected back today. He has always taken an active part in North Side politics, and in the fall election of 1902 was defeated for clerk of the county courts by the fusion nominee, Mr. Barr. He was untiring in his efforts to elect Mr. Kirschler in the recent mayoralty campaign, and politicians think he should be well taken care of. He lives in the Fourth ward, which gave Mr. Kirschler about 1,200 majority last Tuesday.

From some unknown source a report was circulated yesterday that the salary of the city treasurer would be raised to $5,000 a year. Another report was that S. J. Grenet would run for sheriff next fall, but in the meantime would be director of the department of public safety under Mayor Kirschler. In the event of Grenet being elected sheriff, Sheriff Dickson would be appointed to the directorship vacated by Grenet. There is a merry hunt on now in Allegheny for places, and the men with hands on the plum tree are hiding.

PROMOTERS LOCK HORNS.

Two Butler Traction Companies Will Ask State to Settle Right of Way Dispute.

BUTLER, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The Pittsburgh backers of the Pittsburgh & Butler street railway and the Butler Passenger Railway Company, supposed to be the Pittsburgh Trust Company, have locked horns with the Butler & Harmony Street Railway Company, backed by Russell H. Boggs of Allegheny. The fight is for control of Wayne, Water, West and Race streets, Butler. Wednesday the Butler councils granted a franchise to the Butler & Harmony company, which gave it a terminal in Main street.

It is reported the governor has been appealed to and that attorneys representing the two companies will appear before the state department at Harrisburg on Monday.

Gas Wrecks Apartment House.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—A natural gas explosion in the McDavitt apartment, followed by fire, wrecked much of the interior and several outside walls last midnight. The occupants escaped in their night clothes. Several narrowly escaped asphyxiation. The loss is $5,000, partially insured.

DOES YOUR BACK EVER ACHE?

That troublesome pain in the small of the back points straight to kidney sickness. Backache will not leave of its own accord, nor will sick kidneys cure themselves. Every day of neglect makes the cure harder.

Don't make light of a pain in the back. It means there is congestion and inflammation in the kidneys—that the kidneys are clogged and inactive, can't do their whole duty of filtering the blood. It means the circulation of impure blood throughout the body, a weakening of every nerve, muscle and vital organ.

Inactive kidneys cause rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, headaches, dizzy spells, nausea, indigestion, weak heart, gravel, stone in the kidneys, dropsy, too frequent passages of urine, and other urinary disorders. There is a constant tendency towards fatal diabetes or Bright's disease.

When you first feel pain in the small of the back, or first notice anything wrong with the urine, don't delay a moment. Give the kidneys the help they need.

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

Doan's Kidney Pills have a quick and direct action on the kidneys. They drive out the poisons that infest the blood, cleanse and stimulate the kidneys, regulate the urine, cure backache, dizziness and languor, and permanently heal the kidneys.

The best proof we can offer of the great merit of Doan's Kidney Pills is testimony of residents of this city who have used the remedy.

PITTSBURGH TESTIMONY.

C. Winnale, carpenter, of No. 1214 Chislett street, Eighteenth ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "I can advise any kidney sufferer to use Doan's Kidney Pills as I used them some years ago with the greatest benefit. At that time, you will remember, I gave you a statement. I am now pleased to confirm it. I had been troubled with my kidneys and a urinary difficulty for a long time, and often I was obliged to get up four or five times a night. Doan's Kidney Pills removed the trouble, and I think everybody should know about them."

printed mousselines

It's mighty hard to convey anything like an adequate idea of the extraordinary beauty of this season's Silk Warp Mousselines, so we can only urge you to come and see them, with the assurance that you'll be delighted.

The fabric itself, as you know, is sheer and dainty—some plain, others woven plaid and check effects, and some machine embroidered.

Without any printing, they'd be very enticing indeed, while with the delicately tinted, artistically traced, floral and other printings, the effects obtained are simply irresistible.

Makes one think of a delicately cultured garden in which the point of endeavor was to soften and subdue the tints, and create new and ravishing color harmonies.

We believe the greatest success yet known in Cotton Goods merchandising will accrue to the Mousselines.

Prices, 25c to 45c, among which are included the charming new shadow printings—a new effect, most acceptable.

The tinted grounds in pastel tones—gray, green, blue, pink and helio with self colored printings are of a type which incites enthusiasm.

The price—45c.

Tone to these not hitherto known in a Cotton Component.

FINDS OBJECTIONS TO THE REPORT

Insurance Superintendent Hendricks Points Out Difficulty Met by Present System.

NEEDS BIG APPROPRIATION

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Francis Hendricks, state superintendent of insurance, tonight issued a statement relating to the recent report of the Armstrong committee of the legislature with special reference to that portion of the report which criticises the administration of the insurance department. He dwells on the manifold duties of his department, which, he says, is equally charged with the examination and supervision of fire, marine, casualty and credit guaranty corporations, and business, assessment and fraternal beneficiary associations, numbering in all 433.

"Outside of routine work," he says, "the primary duty of the department is a general supervision by examination and otherwise to compel compliance with the statutes regulating insurance and the preservation of assets, reserve and trust funds in such proportion to liabilities as would insure the full discharge of all obligations to policy holders, whether of life or fire insurance.

I do not believe that it has been the expectation that this department would or could exercise a daily watch over the acts of officers and directors with reference to compelling the exercise of ordinary business ability and honesty in the management of the details. A careful examination of the statutes creating and regulating this department, will, I believe, make it quite clear that it was not intended to be an overseer or administrator of the daily business management of these companies.

I doubt if it would be wise to invest any state official with the power and responsibility of overseeing and administering all of the details of the business management of insurance companies, as in certain quarters is now being claimed he should do. Some of the recommendations of the Armstrong committee and many of the suggestions being made now elsewhere, if carried out, would make him in effect a managing director of all the insurance companies in the state.

In the first place, I do not believe that this would be a wise policy. In the second place, if it is deemed to be wise it must be assumed that there must be an entire reorganization of the insurance department, giving the superintendent increased power and an adequate supply of force and money to do this. We all know how many months the Armstrong committee with a large force of help and large supplies of money has taken to investigate the simply larger business matters of practically three insurance companies.

I am informed that the expense for chartered accountants alone in investigating one of these companies under the supervision of one of its own committees has been nearly $180,000. During the last six years there has been received by the insurance department to meet the expenses of investigation and examination of all companies the sum of $224,055, and of which amount $136,566 was available for the expenses of examining life insurance companies. I am sure that it would require an appropriation of from three to four hundred thousand dollars a year.

Herewith is reproduced a hitherto unpublished photograph of Stephen Collins Foster, the famous composer of "My Old Kentucky Home," which is to be used by Sculptor W. L. Roop of Louisville in completing the statue of Foster to be installed in the state house in Frankfort, Ky. The photograph was obtained by Mr. Roop from Mrs. Marion Foster Walsh of this city, the only daughter of Stephen C. Foster, while here last week. Efforts will be made to complete the cast of the statue for unveiling next June, during Kentucky "Home Coming Week."

LEAN BODY DOES NOT INDICATE A FAT SOUL

So Declares Dr. W. I. Wishart During Sermon on "Sanctification by Starvation."

"Leanness of body does not indicate fatness of soul," declared the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart from the pulpit of the Fifth Avenue United Presbyterian church, Allegheny, yesterday morning, during his sermon on "Sanctification by Means of Starvation." He contended that "a lean and hungry look" did not imply holiness, but urged that starvation be applied to the weed-like growth of the vices. Taking for his text Romans xiii:14: "Make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof," he said in part:

Starvation is not usually listed among the sanctifying agencies of life. We are accustomed to think that a man with an empty stomach is not in a very favorable condition for considering the claims of religion, not to speak of making advances toward the higher experiences of it.

We are happily past the time when fastings and bodily mutilations were looked upon as evidences of holiness. No man is made better spiritually by trying to undermine his strength and health. Leanness of body does not indicate fatness of soul. Emaciation is no sign of sanctification. For a man to go around, like Cassius, with "a lean and hungry look," is no evidence that he has been up in the third heaven and has been seeing visions or hearing things unspeakable.

Yet at the same time, in the light of the text I have announced, there is justification for saying that starvation has very much to do with real progress in sanctification; not the starvation of the body, but the starvation of the lusts of the flesh. The habits, desires, passions, ambitions of the selfish, unsanctified heart are to be weakened and subdued by the starvation process.

Science is affording a good many illustrations of the process hinted at in these words. It says to the city of New Orleans, "If you do not want the yellow fever, make not provision for the mosquitos. Take away your rain-barrels and your cisterns, and drain your stagnant pools, that the pestiferous, disease-transmitting mosquito may have no place to breed and become strong for its baleful hypodermic surgery." Science says to the cities of the east, "If you do not want the bubonic plague, clean up. Take away the filth in which the germs are developed." It says to the city of Allegheny, "If you do not want an epidemic of typhoid fever, cease mixing sewerage with your drinking water. Quit pumping up a microbe-mixture into your Lake Side water mains. Filter your water. Remove the elements in which the disease germs grow. Starve the bacilli to death."

The great teaching of this text is that the evil disposition and habits cannot become strong and dominant unless they are in some measure cultivated. "The lusts of the flesh," all the ugly and unholy passions and ambitions and desires that manifest themselves in our lives must have something to grow upon. If we did not in some measure cultivate them and make provision for them they would weaken gradually and die.

Weeds will not grow without a nourishing soil. One of the features of the St. Louis world's fair was an exhibit of weeds. The United States government prepared it in order that farmers and agriculturists might get a better knowledge of those weeds that are most dangerous and unwholesome. But this text reminds us that weeds will not grow unless they are planted in a congenial soil. And here is the cheering assurance that we can keep our lives free from those things if we deliberately and positively refuse to make a place for them in our thought and heart. Starve the evil habits and dispositions until they die.

CHILD TRAINING IS ON DECLINE

UPRIGHT MEN ARE IN DEMAND

"Religious training of children seems to have suffered a decline in the past quarter of a century. Business and society make more demands upon the parents. Many fathers scarcely see their children from one end of the week to the other. It is to be regretted that the training of our children in the public schools is almost exclusively intellectual. If they are taught to be polite, kind, honest, truthful and industrious, it is because wise and faithful teachers realize that mere knowledge is not a sufficient foundation for this republic and that the heart needs cultivation as well as the head."

This opinion was expressed yesterday morning by the Rev. Daniel H. McKee during his sermon on "Moral and Religious Training of Children," before the congregation of McCandless Avenue Presbyterian church. Taking for his text Proverbs xxii:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go," he appealed to parents to take more individual interest in the religious training of their children, and said in part:

Upon the parents must ever rest the main responsibility for the moral and religious training of the child. They must not try to shift this from themselves to the school or church. Someone has well said that the home is the child's physical birthplace and that it should also be his spiritual birthplace. No one else has the opportunity or influence of the parent for molding the character of the child.

The mother should teach her children to pray as soon as they are old enough to repeat her words. If parents are living in such a way as to make them feel that it would be inconsistent for them to conduct family prayers, then for the sake of their children as well as for their own, they should get right with God and also with men. Parents should take their children with them to the preaching service. It is not enough that our boys and girls are sent to the Sunday school. If they go there only, the time may come when they will think they have outgrown the Sunday school and then, never having acquired the habit of attending the preaching service, they are likely to neglect the church altogether.

Family religion is the crying need of the time. When we see how it has fallen into decay it is no wonder that there is so little respect for the Bible and the church. It is no wonder that many have so little taste for solid Gospel preaching. It is no wonder that in high places and low, there have been so many exposures of corruption and dishonesty, and that society is permeated by a spirit of worldliness.

From the very start the parent should teach his children to utterly abhor such a thing as to lie or cheat in business; that it would be better to suffer wrong than to wrong others. He should teach them that it is infinitely better and happier to be poor and honest than to become rich through dishonorable means. There is going to be an increasing demand for upright men in all the walks of life. More and more will it be demanded that at the head of organized capital and industry there shall be men who are trustworthy and beneficent. Men of integrity like Joseph and Daniel are sure to be promoted in politics, in finance and in trade.

CITIZENS SHOULD AID IN DEVELOPING CITY

Dr. J. H. Prugh Urges Individual Participation in Working Out Civic Problems.

"The City and Its Citizens" was the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. John H. Prugh from the pulpit of Grace Reformed church, Lithridge and Bayard streets, yesterday morning. The pastor dwelt upon the duty of citizenship to participate in working out problems in civic improvement, and said in part:

Since the election in past, we will not be accused of partisanship in considering this subject. In view of the possibility of a Greater Pittsburgh, the earnest study of the city's problems is timely. Currents everywhere are sweeping cityward. We do not view with alarm the bigness of our cities. Rather, we rejoice in their wonderful growth. They have been and will continue to be great blessings to the world.

It is true, we have not solved all the city problems, but they are being solved. Everywhere the better classes are awakening to a sense of duty to establish the best possible government. There never was a time in our nation's history when public integrity and popular intelligence were so highly valued and so far-reaching in their effects as now. There never was a time when so many capable men were studying the difficult problems of the cities with a determination that affairs should be administered with skill, honesty and dignity.

A great city is one of the greatest of human achievements. Men were not made to live in isolation. There is no higher form of organization than a great city rightly governed. The trouble with our American cities is that they are full of men who are residents, but not citizens; men who have been willing to take everything from the city, but who have not felt a responsibility to give in return. A citizen is one who shares the burdens of the city, who cherishes the city's interests, and who contributes to the richness of city life.

Pittsburgh has always been known for its commercialism. But our city is to become really great by virtue of its character and the breath of its policy; by the dignity of its life, the variety of its interests and the splendor of its appearance. While we thank God for our citizenship, and while we believe there are few privileges greater than to be a citizen of a great city, let's remember that for our city to develop the highest city life, we must give the city our individual, hearty and constant co-operation.

DEDICATE CHURCH.

Oldest Lutheran Congregation in Allegheny County Consecrates Third Building in History of 118 Years.

With special services morning, afternoon and evening, the Zion Lutheran congregation of Sargeons Hall, dedicated the third church building which it has erected in its history of 118 years.

The dedicatory service was held in the morning, with the pastor, the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley performing the ceremony. Sermons were delivered by the Rev. F. W. Abicht of Marysville, O., in German, and the Rev. J. F. A. Lautenschlager of Malvern, O., in English. In the afternoon neighboring pastors delivered addresses, and last evening the Revs. O. S. Oglesby of Knoxville and W. J. Schoman of Allegheny, preached. The new building is of stone and brick, and was erected at a cost of $15,000.

The congregation is the oldest in the Lutheran church in Allegheny county, and was organized by German settlers from Virginia in 1788. The first church was built of logs. In 1836 a frame building was substituted, and this was succeeded yesterday by the newly dedicated edifice.

TRINITY PARISH NEGROES.

Rector A. W. Arundel Will Secure Negro Assistant for Mission.

So successful has been the growth of St. Philip's mission for negroes in the Trinity Episcopal church, that the rector of the parish, the Rev. Dr. A. W. Arundel, is looking for a negro clergyman to conduct the special services which are now held in the new chapel of the church at 3:30 p. m., Sunday. Many were present at yesterday's services.

A number of negroes are members of the Trinity congregation. They attend the regular services, if they wish, but that all and more may feel free to come to the religious services, the special ones are held. The time of the rector and his assistant is already pretty well taken up, and to give the colored members more opportunities for divine service, it is the rector's intention to secure the colored clergyman, who will be a regular assistant of the rector.

Street Car Strikes Woman.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES UNITE TO HEAR LESSON

Supt. Homer L. Castle Teaches That of the Day at East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

A meeting of the senior and adult departments of the Sunday school of the East Liberty Presbyterian church was held yesterday morning. Attorney Homer L. Castle, superintendent of the Sunday school of the Highland Presbyterian church of North Highland avenue, taught the lesson of the day. The basis of the lesson is the second chapter of the Gospel of Mark, verses 1-12, the healing of the paralytic by our Saviour.

Mr. Castle's teaching of the lesson, "Jesus' Power to Forgive," was considered very impressive. Following his delivery, several in the audience made comments on the lesson.

More than 250 persons, members of the classes and visitors, were in Mr. Castle's audience. Many members of the Pittsburgh board of trade were present, Mr. Castle being a member of the board's executive committee.

The classes included in the meeting were No. 29, conducted by James I. Buchanan; No. 63, Samuel A. Dickie; No. 5, George S. Graham, and No. 79, Newton K. Delavan. Mr. Dickie, Mr. Delavan and W. J. Ward, secretary of class 29, made the arrangements for the meeting. Class 29 has 150 members, men and women, ranging from 25 to 80 years.

WORKER'S MAGAZINE IS SOLVING MANY PROBLEMS FOR SALARIED MEN

It is pretty hard to imagine a newspaper containing so many articles of truly excellent worth as that of yesterday's Gazette. Some months ago it was decided that with each succeeding Sunday the aim would be to give to the readers of the Sunday Gazette a newsier, brighter, more versatile number than that which went into their homes the preceding Sunday. This was setting the standard pretty high, for The Gazette has always been distinguished for its voluminous news service and the excellence of its feature departments. But the ambition has apparently been realized, for each Sunday finds more homes clamoring for the great Sunday paper, and its readers are found in every walk of life.

Exceedingly helpful as well as always interesting and amusing are those articles in the Worker's Magazine which are prepared especially for those readers who have to toil for a living, and with whom it requires the most careful and systematic managing to make ends meet. Many Pittsburgh workingmen are independent in that they own their own homes. But there are thousands of others who still live in other people's houses. There is an article in the Sunday Gazette which deals directly with this problem, showing, and proving conclusively, that it is the wise salaried man who lays the groundwork for owning the roof which covers the heads of his family. Have you a baby in the house? Maybe you think the little codger is an expensive luxury; on the contrary he is a money saver for the family. How so? Get hold of a copy of the Worker's Magazine of yesterday and read Hugh S. Fullerton's article on "Babies Have Intrinsic Value; Raise 'Em and Get Rich." It will open your eyes. William D. Kerfoot writes about the real estate business and tells how hard it is to succeed in it. It is an interesting piece of literary work. These are but a few of the many helpful articles with which yesterday's great number is replete.

The Home Journal section of the Sunday Gazette was just as bright and breezy as ever. "The Rubaiyat of a Scotch Highball," by O. Henry, is a pleasing piece of work. Fletcher Robinson's "Trail of the Dead" is continued in thrilling narrative. Cornelia Bedford writes of "A Yellow Luncheon," and John Elfreth Watkins has an interesting article on "A Museum of Superstition." In addition there are the old favorites, Madame Fullerton, with her Fashion Chats, the Housewives' Congress and the weekly menus, which always appeal to the feminine fancy.

This week's funmakers comprise Little Nemo in Slumberland, Buster Brown, Leander, the Bachelor, the Tiny Tads and Little Sammy with the awful sneeze. Mr. Coon puts on a "sub," who proves himself "it."

WANT AND NEED.

There's a big difference between what a baby wants and what he needs. Deny him the one, give him the other. Most babies need Scott's Emulsion—it's the right thing for a baby. It cohtains a lot of strength-building qualities that their food may not contain. After a while they get to want it. Why? Because it makes them comfortable. Those dimples and round cheeks mean health and ease. Scott's Emulsion makes children easy; keeps them so, too.

SPECULATIVE FEATURES DOMINATE THE MARKET

Even High-Grade Bonds Decline as Result of Professional Activity on Stock Exchange—Small Volume of Trading Is the Feature.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The speculative security market, as viewed superficially, gave a very good account of itself during the week. There were numerous adverse developments. Some of these were of a character sufficiently disturbing to give concern. Others were of a transitory nature—or surface developments—not calculated to have lasting effect, but which not infrequently in the past have exercised temporary unsettling influence on speculative prices. That these market ills, whether real or fancied, had some effect is of course not to be denied, but so far as stocks were concerned it was observable rather in the contraction of business than in price fluctuations.

Stocks, while irregular during the interval, were quite well maintained, but final this show of strength the trading element was more largely indebted to the technical speculative position and to the activity of the professional element in a few issues, than to anything else.

Neither the character of the news nor the tendencies that it disclosed in the quality of the rumors, which furnish the chief bullish ammunition for the pool and clique operators, was calculated to inspire public confidence to any marked degree. The whole performance was largely professional, and its apparent success was due in all probability to some short covering operations and to the natural tendency that aggressive manifestation and short covering has in halting or minimizing the influence of liquidation.

Manipulative Market.

Liquidation, such as unsettled the market after the preceding interval, was not present last week, or if so the manner in which the market machinery was utilized rendered it inoperative as a disturbing factor.

It is only the future that can determine the folly or wisdom of manipulated markets. They look genuine enough to the casual observer, the simulated acting giving a perfect counterfeit presentment of the simon-pure article. Altruistic motives do not underlie them, but if at a time of real or fancied troubles, liquidation can be stayed and prices can be sustained until the difficulties pass away, something has been gained.

The pools and cliques do not have to retrace as much old ground to bring the prices back to the line, where undisturbed holdings can be marketed profitably. Markets so created, however, determine very little of the real situation.

The bond division of the Wall street market does not present the same possibilities as the stock division of making these deceptive movements successful. Aside from a few speculative bond issues dealt in on the exchange, which bear no relation to investment whatsoever, the bond market of the week was unsatisfactory.

Bad Bond Effects.

The news developments of the interval had almost unobstructed play there. Both in the volume of business and the tendency of price concession it was quite clear from the results that heavy new capital issues, evidences of socialistic tendencies, hostility to corporations, the recommendations of the Armstrong life insurance investigation committee in selecting investments of these institutions, and more than all, perhaps, the unsatisfactory money market, was exerting unfavorable influences with the most conservative element in the community, the investors, individual or corporate.

There is, of course, nothing distinctly new in the declining tendency of the investment market. Attention has been repeatedly drawn to the fact that the highest grade issues were undergoing declines, which, with only trifling intervals, have been continuing over a period of several years. Many factors not a few alone, contribute toward this result, and these from time to time have been referred to here.

That bonds of the highest class should decline while speculative issue bonds or stocks are advancing, is not entirely anomalous. There is no imagination in the highest grade bonds. Men cannot build up fanciful stories about them as they can about stocks. They bear a fixed rate of interest, which makes them dear or cheap as the market rate of interest fluctuates.

Speculative Adjuncts.

The multiplication of cheaper issues, made more attractive by attaching speculative features, convertibility, profit participations and the like, is a recognition of the price limitations of the old highest grade bonds.

Many of the newer bond issues, which in all probability are adequately secured, lose something in quality by having the speculative adjuncts attached to them. This greater attractiveness has the natural tendency of shifting such investors as are restricted by law to certain specific classes of investment from highest grades to more speculative issues, with the result that high grades suffer.

Again, at a time of active business, reflecting in advancing speculative prices, unusual demands on capitals and eventually in higher interest rates, the tendency to sell high grade issues in order to employ the proceeds to better advantage in the money market, in business or in speculation, works to the disadvantage of the highest grade issues.

It is quite apparent to anyone who has studied markets over any extended period that upon certain occasions the community is concerned chiefly over the safety of its principal, and cares more for that than for any interest that it may return. Then the speculative stock market languishes and the bond market is good.

On other occasions, usually after an interval of sustained prosperity, good crops and commercial activity, some persons forget their past experiences in hazardous undertakings or the warnings of others go unheeded. Instead of protecting and conserving their principal they place it at hazard for a greater possible gain through interest return or anticipated price enhancement. Then the stock market and all other speculative markets are likely to boom, and the bond market languishes.

CRIES ATTRACT POLICE.

Nobody Is Hurt, but One Man Goes to Hospital and Score Arrested.

Cora Carson was fined $100 and costs yesterday at Central station on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at 427 Second avenue, where cries of murder attracted the police about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. It was said a free for all fight was going on, but nobody was hurt.

One man was sent to the Homeopathic hospital, but it was because the glands in his throat were swollen, and he was threatened with pneumonia. Ten other men found in the house were all discharged and 11 women were fined $25 and costs. Three of them paid and the others went to jail for 20 days.

Cyril Scott in "Prince Chap."

The dainty drama that delighted the most critical city in the world, New York, comes to the Belasco next week. It is the "Prince Chap," with Cyril Scott in the title role. Mr. Scott needs no introduction as a dramatic star, his previous excellent work in the Augustin Daly and Empire stock companies in Broadway, and his brilliancy in musical comedy having gained him a warm admiration in the theatergoing world. The same cast that portrayed the "Prince Chap" at the Madison Square and Joe Weber theaters will appear here, and includes Cecil DeMille, Frank Lamb, Mary Keough, Ethel Clifton, Grace Barber, Constance Adams and others.

GREEN GOODS MARKET IS FIRM AND ACTIVE

Several Articles Have Been Advanced Considerably—Heavy Trading During the Week.

Saturday closed an extremely busy week for the produce dealers. The first of the week opened dull, but from Wednesday on the merchants had all the business they could handily take care of. The local buyers appeared anxious to take up all the stuff possible and large sales were made of nearly all commodities. Outside orders were also large, and as the weather was excellent for shipping large shipments were made. The green goods market was active and firm during the entire week, and on account of the good demand several articles were advanced in the quotations.

Each bright day brings less hope for the market for storage eggs reaching anywhere near a firm mark. There was no change in feeling on Saturday, and the demand was small. The sales on other grades are reported as just fair.

Apples and celery are easily holding the firm tone reached by them a week or so ago. The only attractive celery on the market is that of California grades, and this stuff is finding an excellent sale.

California box apples are in good demand, and apples of any kind which show fine quality are easily disposed of at figures higher than the outside quotation.

Poultry, both dressed and live, is in just fair supply, but the demand has not been strong and the market is from medium to steady. It is thought large shipments of live poultry will arrive during the first of the week with the packets.

The general grocery market remains about the same with few changes. While the demand for sugar is fair there has been no change in the quotations.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts bulletined Saturday were: Pennsylvania, 23 cars hay, 3 cars oats, 2 cars corn. Baltimore & Ohio, 4 cars hay, 4 cars oats. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 3 cars hay, 2 cars corn, 1 car oats.

The market was dull during the entire week. It seemed to lack the vigor and snap that it should have. Buying was from hand to mouth and that, combined with heavy receipts, caused heavier prices all along the line. The only commodity for which there seemed to be any inquiry is No. 1 timothy hay. The grain exchange has appointed a committee of five, consisting of W. N. Gordon, W. Morton, A. H. Sunshine, C. Kellner and J. R. Johnston to inquire into the pure food law as far as it relates to sacked feed. It has been reported to the members that some dealers have been fined for not having their feed tabulated showing weight and analysis of each sack.

BURGETTSTOWN DEVELOPMENT IS PRODUCING GOOD WELLS

In the local fields, the development near Burgettstown shows the best results and the most activity. During the week E. H. Jennings & Bros. drilled in a test on the Kerr farm, more than a half mile in advance of developments, that is showing for a very good producer. Some of the recent completions are holding up at 75 and 100 barrels a day. There are 15 rigs up and wells drilling in the district, and it is expected that the number will be increased before the middle of the coming month.

Operators in the lower southwest fields are not making any important discoveries. The week just closed furnished no sensations for the completions were few, as they often are the rule for Sunday weeks. There is a fair amount of test work under way and starting, but there is not much room for speculation as to what it will result in when completed. There is a possibility that some of the wells may limited extensions to the old fields, and a still smaller chance for the discovery of a strictly new pool. The latter, however, has been so long expected without realization that it is getting discouraging that hope has been almost abandoned.

The bad condition of the roads in the lower southwest on Southeastern Ohio fields is proving a hindrance to starting new work at this time. In many of the fields locations have been made for new wells, but there will be nothing more done before the roads are in a better condition, making it less difficult to place material and machinery on the ground. This determination is made all the more emphatic when it is known that the most that can be expected at the new location are light producers. Operators do not take quite such an economical view of the matter when gushers are in evidence.

In no part of the lower fields is there any marked activity at the present time. In the Yellow Creek field, in Calhoun county, more wells are drilling and starting than in any other. The late completions show lighter in production than was the rule in the older part of the field, when it was under development. The new wells show an average in production that makes it an incentive to keep up development work. This has been the most profitable field operated in the past two years. Just now interest is centered in the territory to the southwest of the Rowells Run district, where the Carter Oil Company has a 50-barrel producer on the S. Bee farm. This location is a mile in advance of any producing wells and the way it has been holding up makes the outlook for an extension to the old development look very promising.

With the return of spring it is more than probable there will be a renewal of wildcatting in Calhoun county. In Roane county, the gas companies are showing a good deal of energy in development work and there is a possibility that a new pool may be discovered.

In the deep sand districts there is less chance for new pools than in the shallow sand territory. All of the deep sand districts have been fairly tested and the most part all have been very nearly developed.

During the week the Philadelphia company completed its second test on the William N. Teagarden farm, located on Long Drain run, Church district, Wetzel county. This is a new fourth sand discovery and when the first test on this farm was drilled in showed so much strength as a producer that it created a very good impression. The second test is lighter than the first and is producing 25 barrels a day. There is a little new work starting in that locality. The Philadelphia company and the South Penn Oil Company are the principal holders of territory in that section. In the lower southwest the fourth sand has not been regarded a reliable producing formation for the reason that it is irregular and given to furnishing flashy wells.

South of Mannington the South Penn Oil Company completed and put to pumping the test on the J. W. Hess farm, drilled by the Hope Gas company, and has a 10 or 15-barrel pumper in the Gordon. When drilled into the sand the well showed for a better producer and caused some new work to be started in that locality.

On Point Pleasant creek, in Ellsworth district, Tyler county, the Southern Oil Company's test on the R. A. Workman farm is proving a very creditable producer. When drilled into the Keener sand two weeks ago the well started to flow at the rate of 20 barrels an hour. It has since been drilled deeper and is holding up at about 100 barrels a day. This is regarded as an important strike for the reason that it is removed more than a mile from any producing wells and would indicate a new pool. There is a little new work starting in that vicinity. The Southern company holds leases on a considerable acreage.

Near Middlebourne, in the same county, the South Penn company has a producer on the I. Baker farm that shows very good staying qualities. This well was drilled in last month and its production at no time has fallen below 25 barrels a day. The eastern edge of Tyler county has received considerable attention in the past two years, but nothing of any importance has been discovered since the development of the old Elk Fork pool.

Operators on the Ohio side are not making any new discoveries and are now confining their energies to the development of the old pools. The most active district is the Beres pool, near Woodsfield, in Monroe county. More wells are drilling and starting in the vicinity of Woodsfield than in any other part of Southeastern Ohio. The late completions are not as large as those first found in the pool, but they are of a size that will keep up the interest till the producing area has been defined and fully developed. To the south of developments some important test wells are due to get the sand this week, and if they prove good producers the limits of the field will be advanced to the south.

In the northwest part of Monroe county there has quite recently been some good producers completed, and their size is such as to stimulate development work in that part of the county.

The Fisher Oil Company got a good producer at its test on the Spencer McMullin farm, in the Harper district, and F. L. Mooney & Co. got another of the same kind at their test on the William H. Shepherd farm. The district, taken as a whole, shows more activity than at any time in more than a year.

KAFFIR CIRCUS HOLDS ATTENTION OF ENGLISH

Brokers Joke While Trembly Conditions Exist on London Exchange—Predict Panic in Americans.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The close of the week found the stock exchange a trifle less gloomy than at the beginning, but that is about all that can be said. What a panic looks like has almost been forgotten because no such thing has attacked the house for years. On many occasions during the past decade, the markets have fallen. Very ill and various political crises have produced the impression known to brokers and jobbers under the title of the "bottom falling out of everything."

This state of affairs came near to ocular demonstration in the Kaffir circus about the middle of the week. Well-known names inside and outside the stock exchange were mentioned as being in distress, and rumor whispered that owners were flinging out every share they possessed. The gold industry was described as being ruined, while the market fell prostrate under the incessant sales.

Plutress in this department filtered through to the other markets. All the talk run upon possible failures at the settlement, and a broker dealing in the American market probably voiced the opinion of a good many, when he described the Kaffir slump as child's play in comparison with what would be seen when the real fall in Americans commenced.

Yet, through all this, the stock exchange retained all its good humor and cheeriness in vivid contrast to the state of prices. Practical joking continued and the wrangling of politicians in the city by-election contest, fed by a huge sheaf of statistics concerning trade with the United States before and after the introduction of the McKinley tariff, went on as though no cause of anxiety existed.

For the moment Chinese labor may be said to dominate the stock exchange, for the influence of the Kaffir circus is felt in every department.

Members do not fail to note that the new government, showing signs of being a little scared at the manner in which the Chinese "slavery" question was worked up at the general election, are now showing a tendency to so tamper with the conditions of the engagement offered to the coolies that the mines will find the employment of Chinese unprofitable, and, therefore, impossible.

Winston Churchill, under secretary for colonial affairs, last week uttered a threat to the Transvaal colonists that if, after they are given home rule, they attempt to manage their affairs in their own way they will be the sufferers; in short, that if they sanction Chinese labor, they must remember the government has the whiphand for them and can absolutely prevent them recruiting in China.

South Africans here are in an ugly mood, and there may be heard certain talk of "cutting the painter" just as America did. The country, too, is in an unhappy state. Trade is paralyzed and progress in every direction checked. Securities are practically not negotiable. No one has money to buy with or to lend.

Is there any wonder then that the stock exchange, affected as much as it is by the Kaffir market, should remain in such a stagnant state?

CARGO OF SUGAR.

Raymond Horner Brings the First River Consignment in Years.

The towboat Raymond Horner, one of the fleet of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company, arrived in the Pittsburgh harbor yesterday. The coming of the Horner is noteworthy because of the cargo she brought with her. In two big model barges were stowed 8,700 barrels of sugar, the first to come from New Orleans by water for many years. It was like an echo of the palmy days of river traffic before the war. This consignment comes as an experiment, and should it prove successful Pittsburgh will add to her commercial activities the item of New Orleans sugar.

The recent slight rise in the river has made light navigation possible down the Ohio. The following boats of the Monongahela river fleet are expected to arrive today from Middleport, where they have been tied up for some time: Exporter, James Moren, Sam Clark, Iron Age and Charley Brown. These will be made ready to take coal south on the next shipping stage.

BOURSE REMAINS FIRM.

Notwithstanding Disturbing Influences, French Exchange Held Stable During the Past Week.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(Special Cable.)—The bourse remained firm practically throughout the week but one or two attempts to revive the activity speedily proved abortive, owing to the uncertainty of the outcome of the conference at Algeciras.

The hesitation became accentuated later, when the debate in the chamber of deputies showed that the government was not so strongly supported as desirable in the present crisis, but prices held well, despite all this unfavorable influence.

Fire Destroys Brick Plant.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Fire this morning destroyed the plant of the Dunbar Firebrick Company at Pechin station. It was owned by T. B. and John Palmer. The cause of the blaze is unknown. The loss is placed at $75,000, partly covered by insurance. Five years ago the plant was destroyed by fire. One hundred and thirty-five men are thrown out of employment. The plant will be rebuilt.

BANK

IN PERIL OF HIS LIFE

BY EMILE GABORIAU

Jacques paused once more; his rapid recital had taken away his breath. "I think," he eventually resumed, "I think I can even now see the look in her eyes as she said, 'I fear nothing in the world—do you hear me? nothing in the world, except being suspected; for I must not be compromised. I like to do as I do; I like to have a lover. But I do not want it to be known, because, if it became known, there would be mischief. Between my reputation and my life I have no choice. If I were to be surprised here by any one, I would rather it should be by my husband than a stranger. I have no love for the count, and I shall never forgive him for having married me; but he has saved my father's honor, and I owe it to him to keep his honor unimpaired in the eyes of the world. He is my husband, besides, and the father of my children; I bear his name, and it must be respected. I should die with grief and shame and rage, if I had to give my arm to a man at whom people might look and smile. Still, I do not love the count, Jacques, I love you. But remember that, between him and you, I should not hesitate a moment, and that I should sacrifice your life and your honor, with a smile on my lips—even though my heart should break—if I could, by so doing, spare him the shadow of a suspicion.' I was about to reply; but she added, 'No more! Every minute we stay here increases the danger. What pretext will you plead for your sudden appearance at Boiscoran?' 'I do not know,' I replied. 'You must borrow some money from your uncle,' she rejoined, 'a considerable sum, to pay your debts. He will be angry, perhaps, but that will explain your sudden fancy for traveling in the month of November. Good-bye, good-bye!' 'What!' I cried, all amazed. 'You will not let me see you again, at least from afar?' 'During this visit it would be the height of imprudence. But, stop! remain at Boiscoran till Sunday. Your uncle never stays away from high mass; go with him to church. But be careful, control yourself. A single imprudence, one blunder, and I should despise you. Now we must part. You will find in Paris a letter from me.'"

Again did Jacques pause, trying to read in M. Magloire's face what impression his recital had produced so far. But the famous lawyer remained impassive. The prisoner sighed, and then once more continued: "I have entered into all these details, Magloire, because I want you to know what kind of a woman the countess is, so that you may understand her conduct. You see that she did not treat me like a traitor; she had given me fair warning, and shown me the abyss into which I was going to fall. Alas! so far from being terrified, these dark sides of her character only attracted me the more. I admired her imperious air, her courage, and her prudence, even her total lack of principle, which contrasted so strangely with her fear of public opinion. I said to myself with foolish pride, 'She certainly is a superior woman!' She must have been pleased with my obedience at church; for I managed to check even a slight trembling which seized me when, seeing her pass, I bowed, being so close to her that my hand touched her dress. I obeyed her in other ways also. I asked my uncle for 6,000 francs, and he gave them to me, laughing; for he was the most generous man on earth; but at the time he remarked, 'I thought you had not come to Boiscoran merely for the purpose of exploring the forest of Rochepommier.' This trifling circumstance increased my admiration of the Countess de Claudieuse. How well she had foreseen my uncle's astonishment, when I had not even dreamed of it! 'She has a genius for prudence,' I thought. Yes, indeed she had a genius for it, and a genius for calculation also, as I soon discovered. When I reached Paris, I found a letter from her waiting for me; but it was nothing more than a repetition of all she had told me at our meeting. This letter was followed by several others, which she begged me to keep for her sake, and which all had a number in the upper corner. The first time I saw her again, I asked her, 'What do these numbers mean?'

"'My dear Jacques,' she replied, 'a woman ought always to know how many letters she has written to her lover. Up till now you must have had nine.' This occurred in May, 1867, at Rochefort, where she had gone to be present at the launching of a frigate, and where I had followed her at her suggestion, with a view of our spending a few hours in each other's company. Like a fool, I laughed at the idea of this epistolary responsibility, and then thought no more about it. I was at that time too busy in other ways. She reminded me of the fact that time was passing, and that the month of September, her month of freedom, was drawing near. Should we be compelled again, like the year before, to resort to these perilous trips to Fontainebleau? Why not get a house in some remote quarter of Paris? Each of her wishes was an order for me. My uncle's liberality knew no end. I bought a house."

"At last, for the first time in Jacques' recital, there appeared a circumstance which might furnish tangible evidence. M. Magloire started and asked eagerly, "Ah, you bought a house?"

"Yes, a nice house with a large garden in the Rue des Vignes at Passy."

"And you own it still?"

"Yes."

"Of course you have the title deeds?" Jacques looked despairing.

"Here, again, fate is against me. There is quite a tale connected with that house."

The Sauveterre lawyer's look grew dark again, much quicker than it had brightened up just before. "Ah!" he said, "a tale, ah!"

"I was scarcely of age," resumed Jacques, "when I wished to purchase this house. I dreaded difficulties. I was afraid my father would hear of it; in fine, I wanted to be as prudent as the countess was. I therefore asked one of my English friends, Sir Francis Burnett, to purchase it in his name. He agreed, and handed me, with the necessary bills of sale, a paper in which he acknowledged my right as proprietor."

"But then——"

"Oh! wait a moment. I did not take these papers to my rooms in my father's house. I put them into a drawer at Passy. When the war broke out, I forgot them. I had left Paris before the German siege began, as you know, and during the two sieges my house was successively occupied by the Nationals guards, the soldiers of the commune, and the regular troops. When I went back there, I found the four walls pierced with holes; and, moreover, all the furniture had disappeared, and with it the papers."

"And Sir Francis Burnett?"

"He left France directly war broke out; and I don't know what has become of him. The friends of his in England to whom I wrote, replied—the one, that he was probably in Australia; the other that he was dead."

"And you have taken no other steps to secure your rights to a piece of property which legally belongs to you?"

"No, not till now."

"You mean to say virtually, that there is in Paris a house which has no owner, is forgotten by everybody and unknown even to the taxgatherer?"

"I beg your pardon. The taxes have always been regularly paid, and the whole neighborhood knows that I am the owner. But the individuality is not the same. I have unceremoniously assumed the identity of my friend. In the eyes of the neighbors, the shopkeepers, the workmen and contractors whom I employed, and to the servants and the gardener, I am Sir Francis Burnett. Ask them about Jacques de Boiscoran and they will reply, 'Don't know him.' Ask them about Sir Francis Burnett and they will answer, 'Oh, very well!' and they will give you my portrait."

M. Magoire shook his head as if he were not fully convinced. "Then," he asked again, "you declare that the Countess de Claudieuse has been at this house?"

"More than 50 times in three years."

"If that is so, she must be known there."

"But Paris is not like Sauveterre, my dear friend; and people are not solely occupied with their neighbor's doings. The Rue des Vignes is quite a deserted street; and the countess took the greatest precautions in coming and going."

"Well, granted, as far as the outside world is concerned. But within? You must have had somebody to stay in the house and keep it in order while you were away and to wait upon you when you were there?"

"I had an English maid-servant."

"Well, this girl must know the countess?"

"She never caught a glimpse of her even, for when the countess was coming, or when she was going away, or when we wanted to walk in the garden, I sent the girl on some errand. I once sent her as far as Orleans to get rid of her for 20 hours. The rest of the time we stayed up stairs, and waited upon ourselves."

M. Magloire was evidently suffering. "You must be under a mistake," he said. "Servants are curious, and if you hide anything from them they become mad with curiosity. That girl watched you, believe me. That girl found means to see the countess when she came here. She must be examined. Is she still in your service?"

"No; she left me when the war broke out, wishing to return to England, and it would be difficult to find her."

"We must give her up, then. But your man-servant? Old Anthony was in your confidence. Did you never tell him anything about it?"

"Never. Only once did I send for him to come to the Rue des Vignes, when I sprained my foot in coming down stairs."

"So that it is impossible for you to prove that the Countess de Claudieuse ever came to your house in Passy? You have no evidence of it, and no eye witness?"

"I used to have evidence. She had brought a number of articles for her private use; but they disappeared during the war."

"Ah, yes!" said M. Magloire, "always the war! It has to answer for everything."

Never had any of M. Galpin-Daveline's examinations been half so painful to Jacques as M. Magloire's questions, which betrayed such distressing incredulity. "Did I not tell you, Magloire," he resumed, "that the countess had a genius for prudence? You can easily conceal yourself when you can spend money without counting it. Would you blame me for having any proofs to furnish? Is it not the duty of every man of honor to do all he can to keep even a shadow of suspicion from her who has confided herself to his hands? I did my duty, and whatever may come of it, I shall not regret it. Could I foresee that a day might come when I, Jacques de Boiscoran, should have to denounce the Countess de Claudieuse, and should be compelled to search for evidence and witnesses against her?"

The eminent advocate of Sauveterre looked aside; and, instead of replying to these questions, he merely exclaimed, "Well, what else have you to say?"

Jacques de Boiscoran tried to overcome his discouragement. "It was on the 2d September, 1867," he said, "that the Countess de Claudieuse entered this house at Passy for the first time. During the five weeks spent that year in Paris, she came almost every day, and spent several hours there. At her father's house she enjoyed absolute and almost uncontrolled independence. She left her daughter—for she had at that time but one child—with her mother, the Marchioness de Tassar; and she was free to go and come as she liked. When she wanted still greater freedom, she went to see her friend at Fontainebleau; and every time she did this, she secured 24 or 48 hours over and above the time for the journey. I, for my part, was perfectly free from all control. Ostensibly, I had gone to Ireland; in reality, I lived in the Rue des Vignes. These five weeks passed like a dream; and yet I must confess, the parting was not as painful as might have been supposed. Not that the bright prism was broken, but I always felt humiliated at the necessity of being concealed. I began to be tired of these incessant precautions; and I was quite ready to give up being Sir Francis Burnett, and to resume my identity. We had, besides, mutually promised never to remain a month without seeing each other, at least for a few hours; and she had invented a number of expedients by which we could meet without danger. A family misfortune came just then to our assistance. My father's eldest brother, the kind uncle who had furnished me with the means to purchase my house at Passy, died, and left me his entire fortune. As the owner of Boiscoran, I could, henceforth, live as much as I chose in the province; and at all events come there whenever I liked, without anybody inquiring the reason."

THE GAZETTE PATTERN.

No. 5519.
Girls' Frock.

No style of garment is more becoming to the little girl than the one piece dress, and for that reason it is always popular. The one shown here is made of cadet-blue cashmere and is worn over a dainty white guimpe. The dress closes in the front, the closing being concealed under a pleat. The square neck and edges of the short slashed sleeve are finished by a narrow band of Persian trimming. Serge, mohair, linen and pique are all adaptable to the mode. The guimpe can be made of batiste linen, China silk or pongee. The medium size will require 3 yards of 36-inch material for the dress and 1⅛ yard for the guimpe.

Girl's Frock No. 5519—Sizes for 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 years.

Complexion Depends Upon State of Skin

IF WOMEN understood more about the actual structure of the skin they might find it easier to keep it in good condition.

In the first place, it is a breathing organ, like the lungs, and second, a natural loom for the manufacture of the beautiful protecting blanket (for such it really is) called the cuticle, scarf, or outer skin, which thinly covers the entire exterior of the body. The surface of the skin is covered with millions of tiny pores of glands, and the bulk of these pores remove, by means of the perspiration, the watery waste of the system, and the remainder secrete the natural oil, which imparts to the skin its well-known soft, smooth appearance, and elasticity.

The scarf skin is woven or built up from beneath by millions of minute scales, which are welded firmly together by the glutinous fluids which ooze from the deeper parts of the skin, and are smoothed down on the surface by the oil thrown out upon it. The scales fit over and upon one another to make one uninterrupted layer. The scarf skin is regularly thrown off as fresh ones are produced.

When anything affects the health of the scarf or outer skin some form of skin trouble results. Thus, if too much oil is secreted, the oil accumulates upon the surface and in the glands and produces a muddy complexion and gives rise to face spots. On the other hand, if the supply of oil is scanty, a delicate, irritable skin results, and is frequently the forerunner of chaps and eczema. If there is any undue pressure on any part of the skin the scarf skin becomes thickened to protect the part beneath, a corn or bunion being an example of this. Then again, the scarf skin may be temporarily destroyed by a burn, scald or some other injury, or it may itself be unhealthy and the patient suffers from psoriasis, chronic eczema or some other serious skin ailment. If the perspiration is acid or laden with an excess of irritant impurities, this will in time create inflammation and irritation. Rheumatic or gouty eczema is due to this cause. Lastly, impure blood frequently manifests itself by breaking out upon the skin, and in such cases not only should "antexema" be applied outwardly, but the blood itself needs purification and cleansing.

It is evident, therefore, that any difficulty comes either from external or internal causes, and indigestion is the more frequent one. Impurities that are not thrown off through their proper channels from the stomach make their way into the blood, and out through the skin, and one of the reasons that candy is so bad for the complexion is that it produces fermentation that is felt immediately by the blood. Sweets in moderation are a necessity, but they should be of the simplest and most wholesome kind, and eaten only in moderation. Acids produce precisely the same effect upon those with whom they disagree, and too much fat in food will also work out through the blood and complexion. Therefore one should have no doubts as to what properties suit the digestion and blood, and a diet should be regulated accordingly.

If the trouble is caused merely by external conditions it is apt to make itself known by blackheads, that are usually caused by clogged pores containing minute particles of dust that germinate a microbe. These are removed by opening the pores with heat and cleansing thoroughly with something like green soap or anything else pure. It is sometimes also necessary to open the spot with a fine needle to press out the accumulation of pus, after which the place should be wiped with alcohol to close the pores. They should never be opened until at first softened with warm applications.

Tact and Policy.

For the benefit of those who cannot discern the border lines, a high fence should be staked off between the words tact and policy.

"I have no tact," the blundering mortal says in inconsequent fashion. "Tact and policy are things I know nothing about."

Tact and policy are qualities as different in essence and as far separated as the north aand south poles.

Tact comes from the heart; policy from the head. Policy is inspired by selfish interests and is a treacherous quality that one might well boast the lack of.

Tact springs from an unwillingness to hurt the feelings of another. It is the mark of innate kindliness, and has no ulterior motive.

Tact is no enemy to truth. It offers truth on a salver instead of casting it in one's teeth, that's all.

A Cordial for Health.

Health of body, health of mind, a clear complexion, a good digestion—only think of it—are promised by a French nerve specialist to everyone who laughs heartily for an hour each day. In the old days they recognized the value of laughter, and had professional jesters to excite mirth. We cannot very well add these to our domestic staff nor can we order from the shops or concert agencies professional mirth-provokers, warranted to give satisfaction. It is certain something can be done, however, else how could a grave and reverend doctor of nervous disorders guarantee a cure to all the Mrs. Gummidges on this earth, and assure us this is his pet means of effecting the cure.

Making Tablecloths Last.

IMPORTANT DEALS ARE PENDING IN THE P., O. AND W. VA. LEAGUE

Uniontown May Get Catcher Sam Brown and Washington Firstbaseman Ed Murphy.

MARIETTA FOR CLARKSBURG

Sam Brown of West Newton, who was considered the leading catcher in the American association last year, and who has been sold by Columbus to the Boston Nationals, may be with the Uniontown team in the Pennsylvania, Ohio & West Virginia league this coming season.

Ed Murphy of Erie, who played first base for Buffalo and was ranked as the best fielding first baseman in the Eastern league, may join the Washington team and captain it.

Negotiations are pending between these players and the clubs concerned, and it is very probable both men will be in the new league. Another important deal is pending on the southern end of the circuit. The promoters of the Clarksburg team are negotiating with Dick Padden, the old big league first baseman, and Brock Brown, the well-known pitcher, for the transfer of the Marietta (O.) club to Clarksburg. Padden and Brown have a park at Marietta and intended operating a team. This deal is expected to go through this week. If it does Brown will be one of the pitchers and Padden, in all probability, will play second.

Sam Brown is working with an engineer corps this winter with headquarters at Uniontown. The management of the Uniontown club has offered him more money than he received at Columbus last year, and more than Boston is expected to offer him. Unless Boston exceeds, or even meets the Uniontown offer, Brown will sign with Manager Gronninger. Three former Yale varsity players are also to be on the Uniontown team.

Manager Seamon of Washington was in Pittsburgh Saturday and conferred with Murphy. They will meet again tomorrow.

For Waynesburg, Milt Montgomery has signed Shortstop A. H. Swartling, who was with Fairmont last year. He has another shortstop in John Moore. First Baseman Bob Conoway, who was expected to return to the Central league, has signed again with Waynesburg.

Steubenville has signed Joseph Chevalier, a Cincinnati pitcher; Charles Nolan, last year with Butler, and J. P. Bliderback, a fast outfielder. Manager Lee writes President Thompson that he has a few other stars under cover.

A Cumberland special says: It now looks as if there will be no regular baseball league in this locality this year, but that all the teams will play independent ball. This means that there will be more clubs, and that they will all be self-supporting. Local talent will also be encouraged.

Midland and Frostburg were obliged to drop from the league last year, while the teams that remained in, with the exception of Piedmont, got far behind financially. The Cumberland team is being signed up and is about complete.

It will include the following players: Milliman and Grimm, catchers; Joseph Laughlin, Woodstock, Va., who quit the season last year with McKeesport, first base; Bobby Pear, Titusville, Pa., second base; Howard McDermott, Canton; Maynard Seilman, Poolesville, Md.; Edgar Carroll, Poolesville, Md., third base, the man to regularly cover to be selected from among the three after trial; Eugene Goswell, shortstop; Ross Benson, Rockville, Md., Howard Beckett, Lanham, Md., Ambrose Dunn, Cambridge, Md., and E. N. Wickline, Sharpsburg, Pa., pitchers; Patrick Brophy of Frostburg, outfielder; Cappie Hallen, Buck Devries and Elder Humbird, local players, will also be on the team. Grimm is also of Cumberland, as is Capt. Carriveau, a pitcher, who has been living here for a year. Owen Jackson, a fielder, who lives in Frostburg, will be signed.

Frostburg wants Bill Hooker, center fielder and captain of Cumberland's last year's team, while Cumberland, too, is anxious to get him back again. There is every reason to believe that the team will be a strong one.

With the possible exception of two or three, every player on the Frostburg team, while paid, will be from the Maryland mining region, which has turned out not a few first-class men. It is said that Piedmont will have back again Niel Maddox, the champion pitcher of the Cumberland and Georges Creek league last season.

Capt. Carriveau of the Cumberland team was one of the most reliable pitchers last year. Ross Benson, who is one the pitching staff this year, is said to be most promising. He had eight shutouts to his credit last season. Dunn was with the Tri-State league last year. Wickline, who is also an outfielder, played independent ball in Ohio last season. Bobby Peer was with Dallas, Tex., last season, and the Carlisle-Lindner team the season before. McDermott was with Dallas, Tex., last season, but refused to return this year. Seilman, Carroll and Goswell are college players.

Charley Atherton, manager of the Johnstown club, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis, was able to visit Johnstown today and examine the lineup of the team signed for the season. He declares that the team will be stronger than the one that quit a game behind Williamsport in the pennant race last season.

Johnstown has a pitching staff second to none in the league, while three new faces will be found in the infield. The men signed have records for speed and fast work in the infield. The places of Badel, McConnell and Lobert have been filled with good men.

By March 1 all of the clubs in the league will send in their list of men signed for this season, together with the men reserved from last year. The latter list will come under a special class. All players not tendered offers by March 1 are considered as released.

The Tri-State magnates are confident that the coming year will be the most successful in the history of the league. The salaries will be higher in a number of the cities, but the attractions will be better and better baseball will be played.

HARVARD AND YALE IN A RELAY RACE

BOSTON, MASS., Feb. 25.—Capt. Dives of the Harvard track team has accepted an invitation to meet Yale in a relay race at the coming games of the New York Athletic club, to be held in Madison square garden. The distance has not been decided upon, but in all probability Harvard will insist on quarter-mile relays, as her half-milers are not in the best of condition and Yale scored a decisive victory over the quarter at the recent games of the Boston Athletic association.

Harvard will be represented in several of the open events also, and the list will probably include "Ben" Stephenson and "Bill" Hanley, the shot putters; Charley Leonard, the short sprint; G. E. Roosevelt, Jr., nephew of President Roosevelt, and Robinson, in the high jump; Miller, the Marathon runner, in the distance events, Rogers in the hurdles and O'Brien in the half-mile.

It will be the first time in three years that Harvard has been represented by a track team at a New York open meeting.

CROLIUS SIGNS PLAYERS.

He Is Getting Together a Strong Team for Lancaster.

LANCASTER, PA., Feb. 25.—Manager Fred Crolius of the Lancaster Tri-State baseball team was here yesterday, consulting with the directors. He reports having signed a string of players who will make a strong bid for the championship, but as a matter of policy he is not announcing their names at this time.

The directors have decided to make extensive improvements to the Rossmere grounds and to sod the diamond. The players will report about April 15, and arrangements are being made for exhibition games.

WASHINGTON TO GET CRACK COLLEGE PITCHER

WASHINGTON, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The board of directors of the Washington Baseball association which will be represented in the new Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia league has approved the contracts of nine players signed by Manager William B. Seaman. Of these six played on the Independent team last year. Four are pitchers. The men signed are James, catcher; Bridges, Tustin, McHale, Slaughter, pitchers; Gladfelter, first; Carlss and Moffet, infielders, and McKeehnte, third base.

Manager Seaman has several other men under contract and a meeting of the directors will be held tomorrow and action then taken. Manager Seaman has lines out for some of the best men in this section, and has contracts for some of them in his pocket. Among the promising twirlers who will undoubtedly be with Washington the coming season is Ross Wiley of Bathesda, O., captain of the team of Oberlin university. Wiley is considered one of the best college players in the Buckeye state. He is not only a pitcher of marked ability, but a crack infielder and a strong batter. Last year while pitching for Oberlin he defeated such strong teams as Ohio State university, Michigan and other big schools in the west, and has lost but few games in his college career. As an evidence that he can deliver the goods is shown by his election to the captaincy of the Oberlin team in his sophomore year.

Wiley has heretofore refused to play summer ball, but it is thought has been induced to come to Washington this year. He will graduate from Oberlin next June. Manager Seaman has lines out for a strong outfielder who resides at Barnesville, O., but refuses to divulge his name. He is said to have made a remarkable showing both as a fielder and a sticker with several smaller Ohio clubs last year. He was recommended by "Tiger" McFarland, the former Wash.-Jeff. football player who has watched his work in several games. McFarland in recommending the Barnesville man stated that he (McFarland) had applied for a position as umpire in the Central league in case of a vacancy. He also intimated that he would be glad to officiate in the new P. O. and W. Va. league.

It is believed that when the directors conclude their work tomorrow that enough men will be under contract to start the season. Washington is scouring the country for players, and Manager Seaman is being given the best of support in his efforts to furnish first class baseball. Negotiations have been entered into with a crack pitcher from Arkansas whom Seaman says he will land. This man's name also remains unknown as the list is not yet completed and the names of the players will not be made public until it is.

The work of subscribing stock for the new organization is proving an easy task. More than $2,000 of the required issue of $3,000 has been subscribed for without much effort being put forth, and the remainder of the amount it is believed will be disposed of in a few days. The election of officers has placed the club on a firm foundation and subscribers of stock from many sections are in evidence.

With the announcement that there would probably be no professional baseball coach at Washington and Jefferson this spring arrangements are being made for the coaching of the collegians by the members of the league club. This arrangement will benefit both the college and town teams and cost the college but little. Manager Seaman approves of the plan as it will enable his players to work out earlier and have a partial use of college park before the close of the college season.

CARPENTER'S PLANS.

To Devote All His Time to the Tri-State This Year.

ALTOONA, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Charles F. Carpenter, president of the Tri-State league, conducts a cigar store and pool room here. The building he occupies was recently sold to the Mountain City Trust Company. The latter has arranged with President Carpenter to occupy the building about March 1, at which time the latter will go out of business, and for the remainder of the year devote all his time and attention to the league. Mr. Carpenter believes that this is going to be an unusual year for baseball, and his plans to make the Tri-State the model league of the country will be carried out all the better by reason of his not having other business interests to share his attention.

President Carpenter has decided not to appoint any umpires on his staff from towns in the Tri-State. While many good men have applied to him for places from league towns he does not think it is a good thing, for the reason that if an umpire was working in his home town the visiting team might claim that it was not getting a square deal on close decisions.

Manager Arthur Irwin was here last week going over the list of men who have applied to him for positions on the Altoonas with President Bocket in order that he can release the ones he does not want, prior to March 1, when the new rule regarding extra players goes into effect.

Pitcher James Durham, who was with Kansas City last year, has been induced to join Altoona by Manager Irwin, and will report here early next month. Catcher William Stroh, recently released by the Boston Nationals, is also said to have been signed by Irwin.

The next meeting of the Tri-State will be at Williamsport about March 1. The managers will announce their players and turn loose all their reserve players not wanted. The released players will then be at liberty to do business with any team.

Jimmy Hart, the outfielder, who deserted Altoona last year, has been notified that his services are not wanted this year, and he has signed with Minneapolis.

LEWIS AND RYAN IN A SLOW BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Adam Ryan's tactics in the wind-up at the National Athletic club last night made his bout with Harry Lewis one of the poorest that has been witnessed in a ring in this city in many weeks.

Ryan was always on the defensive. At this he was as clever as usual and in the early rounds had little or no difficulty in blocking Harry's leads. The crowd showed its disgust at Adam's manner of boxing by frequent rounds of hisses, which served to make Lewis fight all the harder, but had little or no effect on Adam.

In the early rounds Ryan would permit Lewis to lead. Adam would cleverly dodge the jab or hook and the men would clinch and hammer each other on the body.

In the fourth round Lewis stopped trying to jab and tried to get in some swings. The majority of these went wild until near the bell, when Harry caught Ryan on the jaw with a right swing. Adam went to his knees, but was up in a flash, and resumed his former evasive tactics.

There was little improvement in the fifth round. Lewis fought hard in the last round and managed to reach Ryan's face with left swings. He did fair work at this style and after a mix-up or two, Ryan, who had tired of the body-punching game, took to hanging on. Lewis never let up in his aggressive tactics, but Ryan's ring generalship enabled him to keep off his eager opponent. What honors there were to the setto belong to Lewis.

In the preliminaries John Dohen of New York had the better of "Kid" Stinger; Teddy Maloney defeated Frankie Moore, "Boxer" Kelly and "Buck" Lincoln fought each other to a standstill, and Eddie Haney had the better of Tommy Connolley of Reading.

LARRY TEMPLE HAS HARD BOUTS AHEAD

Larry Temple, the Pittsburgh welterweight, will have to go some this week. Tomorrow night at East Pittsburgh he will meet George Cole, and from the reports that are coming from the Quaker city, Temple will have a hard fight on his hands. After this bout is over he will jump a train and ride to Boston, where he is to fight Sam Langford 15 rounds before the Lincoln Athletic club. The contest at East Pittsburgh tomorrow night will be one that the sports have been looking forward to for some time, and a packed house is sure to greet the fighters. There will be three fine preliminaries before the main contest.

Joe Alton is wanted by a club near here to meet Jimmy Dunn, and the latter is ready to make the match at any time.

The Business men's club put on a great show last Saturday night, and it pleased all those who attended, but Manager Mason says that he will hardly run any more shows in the same hall as it does not pay.

Joe Alton again scored a quick knockout Saturday night. Joe comes pretty near being the best fighter at his weight in this part of the country, and is ready at any time to meet anyone.

Paul Moore scored his 23d knockout Saturday night. Moore will not appear again until the next big show given by the Business Men's club, which will be announced in a few days.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE IS ON A LONG TRIP

MEADVILLE, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The Allegheny college basketball team left Meadville yesterday on one of the most extensive tours ever taken by any athletic team of that institution, traveling almost 1,000 miles through the northwestern part of New York. Three games will be played during the trip, one with St. Lawrence university at Canton, N. Y., February 26, the second with Potsdam Normals at Potsdam, February 27, and the last with Colgate university at Hamilton, February 28. The players are in first-class shape. Manager Stunts took the following players: Rossiter, Giesey, Ferry, Mason, Russell and Miller. After the game with Colgate, on the 28th inst., a hasty trip will be made to Meadville to play Pennsylvania State March 2.

COLLEGIANS TO BE ATTRACTIONS

They Will Play Commencement Games at Four Institutions in This Section.

EARL RUSSELL IS ILL

The Interscholastics-Pittsburgh Collegians will be the commencement attractions this spring at four colleges. The Interscholastics will play at Westminster college June 11 and 12; at Washington and Jefferson June 18 and 19; at Indiana state Normal June 25, and at West Virginia university June 27 and 28. More games with other colleges will be played. Capt. Kerr Price writes that the Collegians will be as strong as last year.

Earl Russel, the youngster who pitched great ball for the Pittsburgh Collegians last season, is dangerously ill at his home in Thomas boulevard. He has been in a dangerous condition since last Tuesday and he was in immediate danger all of the latter part of the week. The physicians, however, said yesterday he would pull through.

At South Bethlehem Saturday night Stevens Institute put up a very plucky game against Lehigh, but the home team's better playing soon outdistanced the visitors, and Lehigh marked down a very easy victory to her credit. The final score was 68 to 27. Lehigh started the game with a rush and had scored several points before Stevens located the basket. During the rest of the first period Lehigh basketed three goals to every one Stevens tallied. The score, first half, was Lehigh 3, Stevens 11. Fierce playing characterized the second half, in which Lehigh did the best work. The lineup:

Lehigh—68.		Stevens—27.
Anderson	F.	Grubb
Troutman (Maurer)	F.	Steinmetz (Demorest)
Kramer (Priestly)	C.	Van Buren
Davies	G.	Gaffney
Travis	G.	Hamilton

Goals from floor—Travis 10, Anderson 10, Kramer 4, Davies 2, Maurer 3, Troutman 2, Van Buren 4, Hamilton 3, Grubb 3, Demorest. Goals from fouls—Travis 9, Grubbs 3, Anderson, Van Buren. Referee—M. L. Smith, Lehigh. Timer—H. Merriman, Lehigh. Van Norwick, Stevens Institute. Time of halves—20 minutes.

The gymnastic team of the University of Pennsylvania easily defeated Lehigh Saturday in a dual meet at the local gymnasium, 29 to 19. Ex-Capt. Krauss of the Pennsylvania team was the star of the afternoon's performance, winning three out of the six events and scoring 15 points, which was the highest individual score of the evening. In the club swinging contest, W. W. Donaldson of Lehigh won from T. Ritchie of Pennsylvania, the latter being unable on account of a badly sprained wrist, to perform as well as he usually does.

J. D. Scott of Lehigh, after a splendid exhibition of skillful work upon the flying rings easily outclassed his opponents and won this event. The tumbling, the last event on the program, was won by Capt. Dieterle of Pennsylvania although S. W. Brown of Lehigh, who was handicapped on account of an injured hand, did good work on the mat. The summary:

Horizontal Bars—E. E. Krauss, Pennsylvania, won; S. W. Brown, Lehigh, second.

Side Horse—E. E. Krauss, Pennsylvania, won; C. S. Stauffer, Lehigh, second.

Club Swinging—W. W. Donaldson, Lehigh, won; T. Ritchie, Pennsylvania, second.

Parallel Bars—E. E. Krauss, Pennsylvania, won; E. Akahoshi, Pennsylvania, second.

Flying Rings—J. D. Scott, Lehigh, won; F. Bradford, Pennsylvania, second.

Tumbling—Capt. G. A. Dieterle, Pennsylvania, won; S. W. Brown, Lehigh, second.

Score—Pennsylvania, 29; Lehigh, 19. Judges—Mr. Paul Wendell and Mr. William Freidgen.

College basketball, under the new intercollegiate rules, is now on a firm basis at all of the big institutions. The principal interest is in the games of the Intercollegiate league, composed of teams from Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia. There are strong teams at most of the other institutions in the country. Williams and Dartmouth have the strongest teams in New England, and both of these teams have defeated the leaders in the intercollegiate race—Columbia and Pennsylvania.

Bucknell university, State college, Lehigh, Carlisle Indians and Swarthmore have good teams, in the west Chicago, Michigan and Minnesota are the leaders. That the eastern teams are generally better than their western rivals, however, was proved last winter, when the Minnesota and Wisconsin university teams each made a trip east and were badly beaten by Columbia's team. There are good teams at Allegheny college, Rochester and Syracuse university.

So great is the interest at Pennsylvania that "Mike" Murphy, the veteran track and football trainer, is looking after the basketball men. Heretofore Murphy has never taken much interest in the indoor game, either at Penn or Yale.

Claude O. Finch, a senior engineer from Battle Creek, Mich., did the most creditable work of the first track meet of the year at Michigan. In the high jump he tied the varsity record of 6 feet.

The only other notable performance was that of McKinney in the half mile run. He made it in 2:03 2-5, but three and two-fifths seconds slower than the varsity record.

For a meet in which only new men took part it was encouraging to track fans. Bowman, Barlow, Hull, and Bristol showed well in dashes. Coe, world's champion shot-putter, disappointed the crowd by not competing. Summaries:

Shotput—Garrells, 42 feet 1 inch; Curtis, 38 feet 11½ inches; Graham, 34 feet 7¼ inches.

40 yards dash—Hull, first; Bowman, second; Barlow, third. Time, :04 4-5.

50 yards hurdles—Hurlbert, first; Malcolmson, second; Post, third. Time, :05 4-5.

440 yards dash—Schenk, first; Livingston, second; Bristol, third. Time, :56.

Pole vault—Read, Hunt and Bishop tied at 10 feet 6 inches.

880 yards run—McKinney, first; Waldeck, second; Richardson, third. Time, 2:03 2-5.

Mile run—Dull, first; Catheart, second; West, third. Time, 4:45 1-5.

High jump—Finch, 6 feet; Adams, 5 feet 11 inches.

Graduate Manager Downer of Wisconsin has issued his annual financial report. The report shows the receipts for the year were $47,082 13 and the balance on hand at present is $1,997 10. The report in detail follows:

Trial balance, Jan. 31, 1906:

	Receipts.	Expenditures.
Balance, 1904 (audited)	$ 2,045 38	$ .....
Football	33,124 39	15,922 41
Baseball	1,518 51	2,225 46
General	6,509 57	10,099 29
Track	607 45	2,078 98
Crew	1,853 54	4,021 15
House	382 90	3,204 22
Basketball	150 00	504 47
Tennis	2 80	58 77
1904 account	892 09	7,880 30
Exchange	.....	09
Balance	.....	1,997 10
Totals	$47,082 13	$47,082 13

In explanation of some of these amounts the item of general disbursements, $10,000 39, includes the retention of $8,500 borrowed on the association's notes, which thus also appears as receipts under this account; $204 34 interest on the same; salary of the graduate manager, $2,000; salary of stenographers, $309 50; traveling expenses of the graduate manager, $450 40; John Hickey, three months, not chargeable to track, crew or football, $180; furniture, $61; a total of $9,705 24. The balance, $294 15, represents the office expense, postage, stationery, telegraph and telephone bills, and labor on Camp Randall, not directly chargeable to any other account.

The Notre Dame baseball squad did most of its work out of doors last week. Coach Arndt leaves for St. Louis in a few days to join his team and he has been putting on the finishing touches since Monday. Sheehan and Tobin, pitchers, have been out of the game for some days on account of sore arms.

Interest in track work is greater now than it has been at any time this year, owing to the announcement of the faculty board that a team would be sent to the state meet. Prospects are good for a mile relay team, as O'Connell, W. Donovan, O'Shea, and Keefe, last year's successful quartet, will join the squad tomorrow.

The recent loss of Capt. D. C. Munson, '06, has put a decided damper on Cornell's already unpromising track prospects for the present season, and unless some great discoveries show up in the near future Cornell's chances of making a good showing in the intercollegiates this year are far from bright.

The loss of Munson, who has been the intercollegiate mile champion for the past two years, has been a very severe one. His loss comes on top of losing Vonnegut, the two Porters and Poate, of last year's squad, and makes Cornell's total loss of points 14½ out of her total score of 30½, leaving but 16 points now in college, and four or five of these in poor condition to compete.

Few of the varsity men have struck their track yet, and in practice they can do little better than the second string bunch. J. M. Rogers, '07, is setting down quite well to his work in the quarter, but his running mate, J. C. Carpenter, '07, has been very erratic so far during the indoor season on the relay team.

A. B. Phillips, '06, and T. M. Jackson, '08, in the pole vault, are also a great way off form and are scarcely getting over 11 feet, though there is little doubt but that they will pull around into shape in good time. Jackson has aspirations to better his record of 11 feet 9¼ inches made last year. S. T. Melesner, '06, is a find in the pole vaulting line. He has been doing 11 feet right along. This is the fourth year that he has been out for the team and he is just beginning to make good. He will be useful in the meets preliminary to the intercollegiates at least.

G. T. Cook, '08, who took second in the hammer throw at the intercollegiates last year, is again hard at work. He is also trying his hand at shot putting, but is not doing very well. E. L. Thompson, '09, the big freshman guard of the football team, is also tampering with the weights. Hammer throwing seems to be his best bent. F. J. Furman, '08, a substitute guard last season, is out for the shot put and is doing good work.

Good hurdlers are scarce at Cornell this year. L. Ashburner, '06, for the high sticks, and R. O. Turner, '06, for the low ones, are about the only men who have shown much ability as yet. In the broad jump, a freshman, J. W. Root, '09, is doing some very fair work, but as he has been able to do but a few inches more than 20 feet he can hardly be considered a varsity possibility this year.

E. C. Townsend, '08, who took fourth in the half-mile last year, is out of the running with a bad knee, and most probably will not be able to compete this year. C. A. Gould, '07, who has been running the "hundred" for the past two years without making the varsity team, appears to be running in better form this year. He may be a good man for the dual meets, but will hardly be good enough to run in the intercollegiate "hundred." He is the only sprinter in the university, and as is usual it looks as though Cornell would enter the big meet again without a man for the short distance events.

THREE PRINCETON ATHLETES

J. H. NEULLE. JIM COONEY. DON. B. DOYLE.

Neulle is a Sophomore. He prepared for college at a prep school in Chicago and was at Dartmouth for his freshman year. He was on the track team there. He will doubtless represent Princeton in the championship meet this year. Cooney captained last year's football team. He also caught on the nine last year, and is practically sure of the postion again this coming spring. Doyle, the famous pitcher, is a Pittsburgher. He prepared for college at Shadyside academy. One of his greatest feats last year was winning an 18-inning game from Amherst, 1 to 0. He pitched on the Pittsburgh Collegians last season. These three are roommates at Princeton.

HAUGHTON WINS FROM WATERBURY

Catches the Title Holder Off His Game in the Racquet Semi-Finals.

WINNER TO MEET WHITNEY

Haughton took the first game with comparative ease, but when he only succeeded in scoring one point in the second, a runaway match by Waterbury was looked for. The champion, however, went to pieces in the next two games, and Haughton won the two games and the match.

Whitney, in his match with H. D. Scott of Boston, had the contest two games to one, when Scott made a brace in the fourth. Thirty-one points were necessary to decide the contest in favor of the New York player.

In doubles George Standing, the English professional, and George C. Clark of Boston, won from Thomas Pettit, the local professional, and George Brooks of Philadelphia, 15-8, 7-15, 3-15, 15-9, 15-9. Summary:

National racquet championship: Semi-final round—P. D. Haughton, Boston, defeated Lawrence Waterbury, New York, 15-7, 1-15, 15-13, 15-2.

Payne Whitney, New York, defeated H. D. Scott, Boston, 15-8, 7-15, 15-7, 18-13.

LEW WALTERS HAS TROUBLE WITH SOUTHERN LEAGUE

JOHNSTOWN, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—A story leaks out regarding Second Baseman Lew Walters of the Memphis team of the Southern league, which places the Memphis club and the National association in a very bad light. Walters played under Manager Whistler last season in Memphis and had a non-reserve contract. Whistler was deposed last season and the remainder is told in Walters' own words: "I have a letter to show that I am not to be reserved by Memphis, written by Manager Whistler, and the reserve clause was also scratched out of my contract. But last fall, after we had played our last game, Secretary Tom McCullough of the Memphis club made all players sign a receipt attached to the check, which he tore off, and it also stated that the Memphis club could reserve us if desired. He would not give me my check until I signed it. We had almost a month's pay coming, as we had been on the road. So you can see how things are. I have written two letters to Secretary Farrell and he has not answered either of them."

Trouble in Thomas Family.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—There is a curious mixup in which the Wheeling and the Youngstown teams are involved over Billy Thomas, pitcher for Youngstown last year, who was awarded to Wheeling of the Central league. Thomas after he was released by Manager Hogan with the other players last summer, signed with Harrisburg, and will play there this season. Last week Billy Thomas, the outfielder who has signed with Youngstown again this season, received a contract from Wheeling for him to sign. He has written to Manager Marty Hogan asking if he had been traded to Wheeling. The reply was that he had not been, and would not be. Wheeling is evidently mixed on the two men who answer to the name of "Billy" Thomas and played here last season.

Yale to Have Advisory Board.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale university announced at a banquet last night of the Associated Western Yale clubs that the university corporation had decided to grant the petition for an advisory board, and stated that the board would consist of one member from every alumni association having 100 or more members, and that associations having fewer than 100 members would be allowed to band together until the required number was secured.

BELMONT DENIES THE PRESIDENT'S DEMOCRACY

Claims He Holds No Tenets Which Founders of Party Taught—Calls Mitchell Down.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Perry Belmont has written to William Pitt Mitchell in support of his objections to references to President Roosevelt as "a born Democrat" in an address to members of the New York Democratic club, prepared by a committee of which Mitchell is chairman. Belmont says:

"'t did not seem to me necessary that the President's name be mentioned at all, and to describe him as a 'born Democrat' was a departure from the accuracy as well as from the propriety of such a document. President Roosevelt was an honored officeholder under a Republican administration, and the President himself has always been an active and bitter Republican partisan.

"President Roosevelt does not cherish a single principle of this government which the founders of the Democratic party taught. He has always been and is now a true and consistent disciple of Alexander Hamilton. His present apparent and partial agreement with the Democratic party upon the rate question, so far as he does agree with it, is merely an agreement upon a policy. While we may accept his co-operation in this important matter, we do not expect it on all other matters."

Erie Entertains Knights.

ERIE, PA., Feb. 25.—One thousand members of the Knights of Columbus participated in a grand ceremonial today in this city. Visiting knights from Buffalo, Ashtabula, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and many other nearby points were present. At St. Peter's cathedral Bishop Fitzmaurice celebrated mass for the knights and Father Donellan delivered the sermon. In the afternoon 96 candidates received the third degree in St. Patrick's auditorium.

CARBOLIC ACID ENDS ELSIE GENTER'S LIFE

Is Found in Butcher Shop Soon After Drinking Poison and Dies in Hospital.

A woman supposed to be Elsie Genter, aged about 25 years, died at the Homeopathic hospital at 2 o'clock yesterday morning from carbolic acid poisoning. She was found about midnight in a butcher shop at 55 Tunnel street, where she drank the poison. Late Saturday night she entered the store and appeared to be insane. She threw the knives and cleavers about the place, and went from there to a drug store, where she bought the poison, returned to the store and drank it. The police summoned a patrol wagon and the woman was hurried to the hospital. She formerly lived at 427 Second avenue, and is said to have come here from Johnstown.

Lulu May McCafferty, aged 22, of 204 Stockton avenue, Allegheny, died at the Allegheny General Hospital yesterday from peritonitis, which resulted from a criminal operation performed by herself. She was identified by her brother, Robert, of 203 Glen Caladh street, who said his sister was a saleslady. About 10 days ago the girl went to Dr. Moke of 4738 Liberty avenue, who sent her to the hospital.

Daniel Karalaza, aged 32, of 63 South Thirtieth street, died at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday from injuries received Saturday by being run over by a street car in Carson street, near South Thirtieth street.

Mrs. Frances Grill, aged 35, of 2715 Sumner street, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Mary Blase, 2716 Beulah street, from heart disease. The woman was visiting her niece, and died in a chair.

Michael Cline, a coal miner of Pitcairn, died at the McKeesport hospital yesterday morning from an injury sustained last September. He was caught by a fall of slate in a mine near Wilmerding, and besides having his leg crushed was seriously hurt about the back. He was a married man, 37 years of age.

The coroner was notified last evening of the sudden death of a man named Wagner, aged 30, whose home was on Shaler street. It was said he died about 4 o'clock without medical attention.

CROMWELL MUST TELL SECRETS OF PANAMA

Man Who Figures So Largely in Canal Affairs to Testify Before the Senate Committee.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—William Nelson Cromwell will be the principal witness before the senate committee on interoceanic canals tomorrow. He is expected to shed light upon several features of canal organization and management and upon his multifarious connections with different interests having connection with the government in its function of canal builder.

An effort will be made to trace Mr. Cromwell's part in the negotiations and sale to the government of the assets of the Panaman Canal Company; in the revolution which gave birth to the republic; in the claim for $2,300,000 he is pressing in behalf of the old company; as fiscal agent of the republic, alleged partner of certain bankers on the isthmus, and special representative of Secretary of War Taft in the making of that famous monetary agreement, as general counsel of the Panama railroad, who advised the directors to declare a dividend several hundred thousand dollars in excess of the net earnings, which necessitated a subsequent bond issue; as one of the personal stockholders of the electric and ice plant on the isthmus and as "general adviser of the government in all canal matters."

Mr. Cromwell will also be asked concerning the Panama Development Company, a more or less mysterious organization said to have had its headquarters in Mr. Cromwell's office.

G. A. R. MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Col. James H. Childs Post Holds Them in Memory of Five Comrades.

Col. James H. Childs Post No. 220, G. A. R., held memorial services at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, Kirkpatrick street and Wylie avenue, last night. The Rev. J. H. Denniston, pastor of the church, preached the sermon. The officers of the post on the platform were: James M. McKee, commander; Capt. F. H. Hutchinson, vice commander; Charles C. Delaney, chaplain, James Matthews, adjutant, and Thomas Baldwin, quartermaster.

The services were held in memory of five comrades who died in 1905. They were: Charles W. Wilson, private, Company C, Sixth veteran reserve corps; Thomas McFadden, second lieutenant, Company G, Fifteenth Pennsylvania volunteer militia; Joseph Lythe, corporal, Company F, One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Pennsylvania volunteers; Charles Richardson, private, Company B, Eighth Pennsylvania reserves; August Wagner, private, Company I, Fifty-seventh Pennsylvania volunteers.

THE RATE BILL CONSIDERATION LEADS IN WEEK'S FORECAST

From the time that Senator Tillman presents his report on the railroad rate bill to the senate today until that measure shall have been finally disposed of by the senate that bill will actually, if not technically, occupy the foremost place on the senate calendar. From the beginning of the session the rate regulation question has received eager attention.

There is no prospect of immediately displacing the statehood bill, but there have been many intimations that such a course might be pursued if that bill continues to be unacted on a few weeks later. All senators, whatever their individual view, unite in considering the railroad question as the most important before congress. There will be a lull, however, after the formal report is made, because all who expect to participate in the debate feel the necessity for sufficient time to prepare.

Even during this period of preparation the rate question will not be permitted to remain in obscurity. If the future may be judged from the past, every mention of it on the floor will provoke discussion. It is not at all improbable that the presentation of the report tomorrow will develop debate.

Foraker to Stir Things.

On Wednesday Senator Foraker will take the floor with a prepared speech on the railroad question. His will be the first formal speech. So far as announcement has been made, the Ohio senator stands alone in opposing all railroad legislation along the lines of the Hepburn-Dolliver bill. It is understood that his speech is intended to be a legal exposition of the reasons for his attitude. Many interruptions of his address will undoubtedly occur, and it is very doubtful whether he will be able to conclude in one day.

There is already much speculation as to the prospects of the rate bill. The most generally accepted view is that it will be amended by the senate. Many Democratic senators have expressed the opinion that there should be changes in the bill, and it is not probable that they will alter their minds because the consideration of the measure has been transferred from the committee room to the senate floor. The same may be said of the Republican members of the committee who voted against reporting the bill and other Republican senators.

It is already apparent that the crucial amendment will be the addition of an appeal clause, and over that there will unquestionably be a determined conflict.

Martialing Forces.

Friends of such a modification claim 32 Republican senators favorable to the addition and some of the Democrats have stated that they would regard such a clause with favor.

Senators Beveridge and Nelson, who have the statehood bill in charge, will not admit the possibility of displacement, even in the remote future, and they will do their utmost to press its consideration. Mr. Beveridge is temporarily absent, but Senator Nelson will insist Monday that nothing shall stand in the way of Senator Dick's proceeding with his speech in support of joint statehood. The first half of the speech was delivered more than a week ago, and Mr. Dick sought in vain all last week to secure an opportunity for its conclusion.

Senator Foraker will press his amendment for a separate vote for Arizona on admission and will try to secure an agreement to vote at an early day, but the friends of the bill, as it stands, will not concede that point. With the Foraker amendment adopted, the bill could be disposed of at any time, and some senators suggest this as the most feasible way of getting it out of the road.

Senator Clapp, as chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, will try to secure action on the bill for the settlement of the affairs of the five civilized tribes, but there is opposition to some of the provisions.

Army Discussions.

The fortifications appropriation bill will be reported during the week and probably taken up by the senate.

The delayed consideration of the army appropriation bill will be resumed as the chief topic of legislation in the house. Chairman Hull says there will be no effort to hurry the consideration, and predicts that it will pass Thursday.

A compromise on the provision abolishing the grade of lieutenant general in the army has been practically agreed upon whereby Gen. Corbin and Gen. MacArthur will be allowed to reach that rank before their retirement. It is understood Mr. Grosvenor will offer the compromise amendment.

Monday will be devoted to the consideration of legislation for the District of Columbia. If there is time after this order, Mr. Davidson will call up the Dalzell bill for the incorporation of the Lake Erie and Ohio Ship Canal Company. Twice last week this bill was brought forward, but both efforts were unsuccessful. The test votes indicate enough to pass the bill.

The Indian appropriation bill is on the house calendar and may be brought forward for consideration the last of the week.

The feeling of unrest in the deliberations of the Algeciras conference on Moroccan affairs seems to have been at least temporarily supplanted by a more hopeful and conciliatory attitude. The formal debates and the sessions of the special committee on the question of the Moroccan bank will continue this week, and dispatches tend to create the impression that with the adjustment of this point the all-important problem of the policing of Morocco will come to the front again with better chances of an amicable settlement.

The wedding of Prince Eitel-Friedrich, second son of Emperor William of Germany, to the Duchess Sophie Charlotte, eldest daughter of the grand duke of Oldenburg, will take place in Berlin tomorrow.

This week promises developments in the threatened coal strike. A meeting of the joint committee of seven operators and seven miners to discuss the demands of the miners is expected to occur on Tuesday. The scales committee of the anthracite mine workers has ratified the schedule of demands. The demands are believed to be, in brief, a full recognition of the union; a general eight-hour work day; an advance in wages, to be brought about by a readjustment of the present scale, and a reconstruction of the rules governing the conciliation board.

The international convention of the student volunteer movement will be held in Nashville, Tenn., February 28 to March 4.

The American intercollegiate football rules committee, which meets in New York on March 3, will discuss the revision in football tactics which are to go into effect next season.

Judge Peter Vanvoorhees Dies.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 25.—Former Judge Peter Vanvoorhees of this city, who recently retired from the New Jersey court of errors and appeals, died at his home tonight after a long illness. He was born in Franklin Park, near New Brunswick, N. J., in 1832. He was graduated from Rutgers college in 1873 and admitted to the bar in 1875. In 1900 he was appointed a judge of the court of errors and appeals.

Horses and Wagon Are Damaged.

A team of horses owned by Bauer Bros. of 5711 Penn avenue, driven by Herman Walters, went over the hill near the Sylvan avenue bridge early Saturday morning. The driver was only slightly hurt, but the horses were badly injured. The wagon and its contents were destroyed, entailing a loss of $250.

"The Black Flag on the Big Three"

In Everybody's for March, Lawson says that the petty crimes of the big insurance companies have been revealed and will be stopped; but that the larger stealing—by millions and millions—has been made safer for the grafters than ever.

The only remedy is "to place the company in the hands of men at the coming annual election who will find out how many dollars have been looted, and have them make complete restitution and punish and after that, an honest organization."

If this is not done, he predicts the insolvency of the "big three" within five years.

CHANGES MADE IN OLD TURF RULES

Apprentices Will Not Get Allowances Except When Riding for Contract Employers.

UNUSUAL DISTANCE RACES

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 25.—New rules for the government of racing on the tracks of the American Turf association were adopted yesterday and announced today. The rules have not yet been officially issued, but will be printed in full and distributed to turfmen in a few days.

The most important change of all those made was in regard to the apprentice allowance in selling races. This is rule No. 158 and, according to the new law, jockeys with apprentice allowances will be granted their allowance only when they are riding for their contract employers. This rule also reads that jockeys with apprentice allowances will be allowed three pounds in handicaps, which is a distinct departure from the old law.

Another important change was that which prohibits races at unusual distances. Hereafter there will be no races at a mile and 40 yards, as heretofore, and there will be no race at more than a mile and a sixteenth. The scale of weights was also raised from 85 to 87 pounds for 3-year-olds and upward.

Keifreider Married.

POTTSTOWN, PA., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Albert N. Keifreider, a baseball pitcher who was with the Lancaster Tri-State league team part of last season, was married last evening to Miss Pearl Weand. Mr. and Mrs. Keifreider left on a honeymoon trip, at the conclusion of which the bridegroom will join the Holyoke, Mass., team.

REFUSES TO DISCUSS ISSUE.

Vice President McCrea of Pennsylvania Silent on Mileage Question.

James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, returned yesterday from Philadelphia, where he had been in conference with officials of various railroads regarding 2-cent-a-mile railroad legislation.

When seen yesterday afternoon Mr. McCrea refused to discuss the nature of the conference, nor would he affirm or deny the report that the railroads contemplate fighting the reduction of the passenger mileage rate.

Fire in a Laundry.

A fire was discovered in the building of the Pittsburgh Laundry Company, at Cedar street and Friendship avenue, shortly before midnight. It was caused by one of the gas engines becoming overheated. The loss will amount to about $50.

WEATHER KEEPS CROWDS AT HOME

Family Fireside Is Popular and Not Many Visitors Go to the Big Parks.

ANIMALS SOON TO BE MOVED

It was a very good Sunday to spend at your own fireside, and this opinion seemed to prevail in and around Pittsburgh yesterday. With alternate drizzling rains and wet snow flurries, and a nasty, raw wind blowing, there was little inducement for pedestrianism or mild recreations in the city parks. Perhaps, if the worst in Col. Ridgway's storage house were to be alloted as the Sunday portion of variable weather, there would be some who would dress for the occasion and visit Schenley and Highland parks. These indifferent ones were out yesterday and formed the only objects of human activity on a most bleak background of cold and dull landscape.

The majority went to the Highland park zoo, where they amused themselves and furnished something for the animals to look at. The lions and the big Bengal tigers, as usual, looked covetously at the very little children and reminiscently licked their chops. The lions indulged in their Sabbath afternoon praise service and everything in the zoo, not securely nailed down, trembled at the sound vibrations. This jungle songfest is worth the trip to Highland even in such weather as that of yesterday.

Polar Bears Were Happy.

The two big Polar bears seemed to be enjoying the uncomfortably piercing breezes, and with their beautiful white coats ruffled, were stepping about their cages in a lively fashion. The larger of the two, who was probably one of Hugh Pendexter's famous polar football squad before he fell captive, limped painfully along the front of his stall, as though proud of his injury and right willing to exhibit himself as the former catapult center of the old circus man's Rugby team. The glory of such injuries, seemingly, is as much nourished by adulation in the frigid zone as in the United States.

Two or three cinnamon bears and a couple of huge grizzlies were the only other animals besides the Polar bears that were outside yesterday, and those within the walls did not seem to envy them. The weather was just keen enough that when a visitor passed the tank in which the Mallard ducks were cutting capers he though of what a nice dinner they would make, served with cream potatoes and bernaise sauce.

But the animals are soon to leave the enervating atmosphere of the interior and occupy their summer homes. Work will commence today on all the outdoor pens and coops in which the animals and birds reside during the warm months.

Expects an Early Spring.

Superintendent Burke is making preparation for an early spring and expects to have his pensioners enjoying an outdoor life earlier this year than usual. There may be necessity for several new pens, for during the past year a number of animals have been presented to the city and the offspring of those already there have increased the numbers. All the pens will be repaired and put into shape to hold their occupants at an early date. Some of the animals will be put out in April, and all of them will quit the indoor existence in May. The lions have become too many, and five or six cubs will be sold by Superintendent Burke. The zebras and antelope will probably be the last to go out into the open, as they are most sensitive to variable climate.

Flowers have an attraction for the public that is perpetual, and some visitors strolled through the conservatories during the afternoon. The begonias, that made the display for several weeks, are gone, and their place was taken yesterday by the cinerarias. Thousands of these plants filled the big display house and made a pretty showing.

Chilly and raw as the day was scores of modest little snowdrops peeped above the ground in the borders of the flower beds surrounding the greenhouses, and with their tiny white blossoms proclaimed their right to some passing notice. They are the pioneers and will be followed soon by the crocuses.

Photographs of Indian Life.

The display of Indian photographs in the art gallery drew a good crowd, and the pictures were worth any trouble or discomfort it took to get there. E. S. Curtis and M. W. Philipps of Seattle, Wash., are owners of the exhibit. Several hundred photographs of Indian life are shown, and perhaps every phase of the daily life of the western red men is depicted. Every tribe is represented and the pictures include scenes of the hunt and of spiritual devotion. The war-dance and the medicine man in his fantastic costume are hung side by side. Indolence and industry are pictured in equally vivid colors. Cute little papooses and ancient chiefs, whose years are like those of Abraham of old, have been made to "sit for their pictures." The whole collection is really wonderful in every sense. It forms a history and gives an insight into the individual and tribal manners of a race that is rapidly becoming extinct, and is done with an artistic finish that causes wonder. The exhibit is a good thing to see.

Walter E. Hall presided at the big organ in the music hall and rendered an excellent program to a large audience.

SUNDAY GAZETTE SCOURS THE UNIVERSE FOR NEWS

Local.

Over 70 persons, several of whom may die, were hurt in a quartet of traction wrecks in Greater Pittsburgh. Princeton club of Western Pennsylvania entertained many sons of Old Nassau at thirty-seventh annual banquet. Son who listened to mother pleading guilty to shoplifting fainted in court. Mrs. Robert G. Hall drove pair of frightened horses into a stone wall and saved party from injury or possible death. Intense excitement was caused in the East End foreign settlement when it was reported that $20,000 had been found in a tin box in an old house in Larimer avenue. Work on the new cross-town 50-inch water main has been suspended until winter is ended. John Mitchell's committee opened headquarters in Hotel Griswold to fight Patrick Dolan.

Domestic.

Rumor has it that President Roosevelt and Senator Tillman will reconcile their long feud over railroad rate bill. Three students were killed and nine injured in a fire which destroyed the Kenyon Military academy at Gambier, O. Sarah Jackson, aged 106, a daughter of Andrew Jackson, and Capt. Samuel Kuhns, aged 101, were married after being lovers for 80 years. Indications point to probability of amendment of Philippine tariff and statehood bills in the senate. Albany (N. Y.) man confessed to killing his wife, thus clearing up trunk mystery. President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad, and other big transportation men, held a conference in Philadelphia to devise plans for fighting 2-cent mileage legislation. Attorney General Carson reported to governor on Pennsylvania insurance investigation, recommending that civil suits should be brought against former commissioners and Clayton Erb, but that no ground existed for criminal action.

Sporting.

Two dozen members of the Pittsburgh baseball club will leave in two weeks for Hot Springs, Ark. Gans-Britt fake has soured followers of pugilism on the Pacific coast. Good scores were made last week by bowling teams in Allegheny county. National bowling tournament at Louisville is expected to be the greatest ever held by the A. B. C. Pittsburgh Automobile club will secure suburban home on the banks of the Allegheny river.

Financial.

Big break in Consolidated Gas and strength of Union Pacific were the features of the New York stock market. The week's bank statement did not present any surprises. Pittsburgh stocks were dull but steady. Wheat closed steady, with corn and oats higher at Chicago.

CANNOT INQUIRE INTO THE KONGO

Secretary Root Says We Have No Rights There, but Would Like to Have.

GIVES OUTLINE OF HIS PLAN

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The attitude of the American government toward the conditions in the Kongo Free State and the American desire for some plan for the administration of all of Central Africa by the several powers ruling or exercising a controlling influence there are stated in a letter sent by Secretary Root to Representative Denby of Michigan. Secretary Root says this government has no opportunity or power to investigate Kongo conditions. The secretary says:

It is not clear that the United States is in a position to bring about an international inquiry. We are parties to a general act for the suppression of the slave trade and the regulation of the firearm and liquor traffics in Central Africa, but that act relegates and confines all power and functions to those ends to the several powers having possessions or spheres of influence. The United States has neither.

Our only potential function is in relation to the search and capture of slave vessels within certain waters of the African coast, and no occasion has arisen to exercise that function. We are not parties to the other more commonly cited general act of the Kongo.

No Treaty Rights.

Our treaty relation to the Kongo State is that of one sovereign to another, wholly independent of any relations created by or deductible from the general act of Berlin which applies only to its signatories. It is questionable whether the treaty rights of the signatories extend to intervention by any one or more of them in the internal affairs of any of them. The Kongo State absolutely denies any right on their part to intervene in its affairs, and none of the other signatory powers appears to controvert that denial.

It is certain that the United States has no treaty right of intervention. We could not rightfully summon or participate in any international conference looking to intervention, adjudication, or enforcement of a general accord by other African powers against the Kongo State. We have no diplomatic or consular representatives in that country. We could not send anyone there except with the consent of the government of the Kongo—to do otherwise would be an invasion of its sovereignty.

Other powers, being parties to the general act of Berlin, have made investigations through their authorized representatives, and the Kongo government also has sent investigating commissions. The information we have on the subject of Kongo misrule comes at second hand through opposed channels.

Hopes for Some Method.

Whenever complaint has been made by American interests in the Kongo that the administrative conditions there impair American rights or endanger American establishments, the matter has been brought promptly and forcibly, before the Kongo government and has been met with the assurance of investigation and, if substantiated, full redress. In taking this course we act within our sovereign rights.

I most sincerely wish that some way could be found by which the whole of Central Africa could be rightly administered by the several powers ruling or exercising a controlling influence therein, so as to realize the intention of those powers when they framed the general act of the Kongo.

Much may be and doubtless is desirable in way of good government in that vast region elsewhere than in the Kongo. If the United States had happened to possess in darkest Africa a territory five times as great and populous as the Philippines, we too might find good government difficult, and come in for our share of just or unjust criticism.

QUARANTINE AT MANILA.

Government Reports Show Cholera Cases Predominate—Smallpox Exacts but Small Toll.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A report of the public health and marine hospital service gives a summary of the quarantinable diseases at Manila during 1905, showing there were 354 cases and 225 deaths from cholera; 45 cases and 43 deaths from plague, and 27 cases and two deaths from smallpox. The report says that while the number of cholera cases has remained about the same for several weeks, their location is constantly changing. Cholera has practically described an entire circle of a radius of about 25 miles around the city, its course indicating, the report says, that the maritime quarantine has been entirely effective.

In view of the very few cases in the city of Manila, and their sporadic character, the outgoing inter-island quarantine placed on vessels has been considerably modified.

Your Doctor Will Tell You

That the bilious after-effect, which makes many forego the good of beer, is due to imperfect aging of common beer.

Schlitz beer cannot cause biliousness. It is aged for months before it is marketed.

It is brewed in cleanliness—cooled in filtered air—sterilized to kill every germ. Such care doubles the cost of our brewing, yet Schlitz costs you no more—usually—than common beer.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded
